REDS FAIL IN ATTACKING HILL

. . . U.S. Marines Hold Outpost Near Khe Sanh

Saigon (AP)—North Vietnamese troops, in possible prelude to a long-awaited northwest offensive, slashed through barbed-wire defenses near Khe Sanh Thursday and wrested half a scarred hilltop from U.S. Marines before being driven back.

A furious counterattack by the Leathernecks with heavy air and artillery support cost the enemy 124 dead, the U.S. command reported. Marine losses were 21 dead and 27 wounded in the fight, about two miles from the Khe Sanh combat base in South Vietnam's northwest corner, where the allies expect a big push from two enemy divisions.

Street Fights Go On

Elsewhere, the Communist offensive against the cities appeared to be in its last stages after posting a week of record casualties. Street fighting persisted, however, in Saigon, Hue, Dalat and Cao Lanh.

Associated Press correspondent John T. Wheeler reported from Khe Sanh that the North Vietnamese pummeled the dug-in Marines with mortar and rocket fire in paving the way for the uphill attack. One enemy soldier was captured.

The hill is one of three Marine-controlled high points along a ridge that overlooks the combat base from the northwest. With the fall of the Special Forces camp at Lang Vei Wednesday, Khe Sanh now poses the only major block to massing North Vietnamese. The enemy is expected to cut into the northern provinces of South Vietnam from Laos.

Reds Pinched

Farther south, U.S. Marines and soldiers combined to crush a 250-man guerrilla battalion that had attacked an allied position four miles south of Da Nang. The U.S. command said 152 enemy died Thursday afternoon when they were clamped between soldiers of the 198th Light Infantry Brigade and members of the 3rd Marine Regiment. U.S. casualties were put at 15 killed and 63 wounded.

The battle was one of a series fought around Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon.

Enemy troops sprang a deadly ambush on a 15-truck Marine convoy rushing supplies into Hue Wednesday along Route 1, according to a delayed U.S. report. Twenty Marines were reported killed in the action and 39 were wounded, but they killed 34 enemy soldiers.

North Raided

In air action Thursday, Air Force F4 Phantoms attacked Phuc Yen airfield 18 miles northwest of Hanoi. Navy A6 Intruders pounded another air base five miles north of Vinh. Other Air Force jets raided an army barracks 43 miles west of Hanoi. Heavy monsoon overcasts precluded damage assessments.

South Vietnamese authorities in Saigon were trying to launch a relief program for victims of the Red drive against the cities and cope at the same time with pockets of Communist resistance.

The war in the north added several thousand civilians, some royal Laotian soldiers and nearly 200 irregulars of the Lang Vei garrison to the refugee problem.

Marines disarmed and turned away Laotian, Vietnamese and Montagnards soldiers who escaped to Khe Sanh after seeking vainly, along with their U.S. Green Beret advisers, to hold the camp against a tank-led assault Wednesday by 800 North Vietnamese infantrymen.

Military Problem

Neither South Vietnamese nor American authorities seemed to assume immediate responsibility for their care. A military problem was involved, for secure places within the compound are few. And Viet Cong are known in some cases to have signed up in the Special Forces to execute blows against the allies at crucial moments.

Fourteen of the 24 Americans based at Lang Vei escaped. Eight of them were wounded. The 10 others were among 500 or so of the garrison killed, captured or missing.

PACKARD SAYS . . .

Lack Of Rules Causes Present Sex Confusion

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

Noted author and social critic Vance Packard declared here Thursday that there is so much confusion about sex because "few rules command the majority vote" among adults or youths.

"An evolution is taking place in sex roles and sex behavior," the author of such best sellers as "The Hidden Persuaders," "Status Seekers," "Wastemakers," and "Naked Society" concluded from his latest research.

He addressed a standing-room-only crowd of some 800 University of Nebraska students on male-female relationships.

Not Finished

Packard explained that he had spent four years researching the subject but had not finished a book about it yet.

Outlining the forces behind the sex evolution, Packard asserted that "dislocations in our way of life are due to the rapid social change."

Creating the new environment are changes being produced by the life-modifying sciences, by technological innovations, by obtaining higher education, and by wars and international tensions.

Changes In Mood

In addition, changes in basic beliefs, ideals and the national mood have had a great impact on male-female relationships, according to Packard.

The students were told that with the lengthening of the human life span, development of contraceptives, liberalized abortion laws, longer child-bearing period and women's ability to stay and look younger longer, a "unique problem" has developed.

"For the first time in history, men and women now have a way to separate recreational from procreative aspects of intimacy."

'Sexualization'

The changes have resulted in "sexualization of the female," Packard said.

Not only have technological innovations brought more women into the working world but they also have created more free time for activity by women in community service or careers.

However, Packard pointed out, recently there has been a decline of women in leadership roles and men still dominate the prestigious professional positions.

Faith Undermined

Discussing changes in religious emphasis, Packard indicated that great scientific discoveries have undermined the faith of many people.

There has been a decline in religious belief which is pertinent, according to the social critic, most of the Western religions have favored the concept that "women should be seen but seldom heard."

Packard said that "living for the moment has been encouraged by the new affluence and growing social security systems."

Bachelors Unhappy

Noting that there seems to be an increased fascination with marriage, he reported results of a survey that claimed bachelors were the most unhappy persons and married men were the happiest.

"The wife, in many cases, has become a man's best friend," he declared. "Marriage provides a sense of security and a sense of identity."

Omaha Builders Study Measure On Open Housing

Omaha (AP) — John Peterson, president of the Omaha Home Builders Association, said Thursday his group is preparing an open housing law to present to the 1969 state legislative session. Peterson said his group wants state-wide application of the proposed law.

Peterson commented at a meeting in Omaha on the federal Model Cities Program. He did not elaborate on details of the proposal other than to say fair housing laws from other states are being used as guides.

About 50 civic leaders at the meeting urged Omaha Mayor A. V. Sorensen to have Omaha reapply for a planning grant under the Model Cities Program.

A Simple Cure.

Tokyo (AP) — A vagrant walked into a police station, said he committed a theft, and asked to be locked up, police reported. He gave this explanation: "My rheumatism is getting worse again. I wish to cure the illness protected by the high thick walls of prison against the cold winds of the world."

CHIEF DEPUTY HASSON . . . at work and as state deputy sheriff, inset.

Vast Changes Seen By L. C. Hasson In His 48 Years In Law Enforcement

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

One of the most colorful figures in Nebraska's law enforcement history is retiring March 1 after 32 years in the Lancaster County Sheriff's office and 48 years in law enforcement.

Starting his law enforcement career in Fremont in 1920 as a deputy sheriff for Dodge County, L. C. Hasson served in that capacity until 1925 when he joined the state sheriff's office, the forerunner of the State Safety Patrol.

Hasson was with the state office until 1933 when he took a position at the Nebraska State Penitentiary running a dining room and construction gang.

Chief Since '40

In 1936 he started as deputy sheriff for Lancaster County, becoming chief deputy in 1940—the capacity he has held since that time.

"It's all been quite an experience," he says in his familiar way.

Arrests were seldom a problem, according to Hasson, noting that one of the most difficult tasks of a deputy sheriff is picking up mental patients.

Baseball Player

A former baseball player, playing in the Western League in 1914 and 1915 and later on a semi-pro team in his native town of Dodge, Hasson utilized his batting ability when met at the door by a mental patient with a teakettle of boiling water in her hand.

"I saw a baseball bat lying on the porch, so I picked it up and hit a home run knocking that teakettle to the other end of the house into the kitchen," he said.

Reminiscing on how times have changed, Hasson recalled that as late as the early forties, a man could be arrested and in less than three hours be incarcerated as a prisoner in the penitentiary.

"They didn't have presentence investigations in those days," he said.

Swift Justice

He recalled one particular case in which he arrested a man for stealing gasoline about 6 a.m. and brought him in to the county attorney's office. A complaint was drawn and the defendant was arraigned and sentenced as soon as the judge arrived.

"I had him out in the penitentiary by 9 a.m.," Hasson said.

Having worked on practically every Lancaster County murder case since he joined the sheriff's office, Hasson said he was in charge of obtaining the evidence from the post-mortems on eight of the victims of Charles Starkweather's killing spree.

Missing Body

One of the most unusual murder cases he worked on was while he was in the state office back in 1925.

The body of the victim was discovered about five months after the alleged slaying of a farmer.

"I learned while a farmhand as a boy that one could take a mirror and hold it up to the sun and it would reflect the amount of water in a well," he said.

"Well, we'd looked everywhere else on the place, and when you're looking you look every where you can find, so we held up that mirror over the well and discovered more than water in the reflection."

Near Limit

Hasson also recalls an arrest he made under unusual circumstances when the defendant had already boarded a ship and was near the "three-mile limit" in the Pacific.

"We got there in time, since the Navy knew we wanted the man, and we brought him back in to shore where he waived extradition and we brought him back to Nebraska," he said.

His experience has taught him that "all the questions in a case are never answered."

Not Discouraged

"I've been disgusted a lot of times, but never discouraged," he says.

As for retirement plans, Hasson says he hasn't decided, but indications are that early plans will include a trip to harness race tracks.

A horse lover, Hasson's interest in harness races is a somewhat more than casual interest, since he, himself, drove in harness races in Nebraska in 1913, 1914 and 1915.

Boys' School Recreation Center Planning Underway, Sigler Says

State Corrections Director Maurice Sigler said Thursday that planning is underway for a new recreational center at the Kearney Boys' Training School.

"There is no money available now," he said, "but we want to have architectural plans ready for the earliest possible moment money does become available."

The school's 50-year-old recreation hall was destroyed by fire in early January. Defective wiring was blamed for the blaze.

Sigler said planning has not progressed as to the size or floor plan of the new building, but noted, "The old building was wholly inadequate."

Sigler said he would push for construction of a new recreation center as early as possible "because there isn't anything there now for the boys to do."

Sigler indicated building funds probably couldn't become available until the 1969 Legislative session. He said he would confer soon with Gov. Norbert Tiemann on planning for the new center.

Rocky Calls For Mediation In New York Garbage Strike

New York (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller Thursday night called for the "immediate convening of a five-man mediation panel" which would present its proposals by midnight for settlement of the week-long garbage men's strike.

Rockefeller said that he had "thoroughly explored all the facts pertaining to the labor dispute" and that Mayor John V. Lindsay and the union had agreed to his call for immediate mediation.

The governor stepped into the city's garbage crisis Thursday morning to "determine the issues," after Lindsay had declared the city in a "state of health emergency."

Guard Not Mentioned

In his prepared statement Rockefeller made no mention of the possibility of calling out the National Guard to collect the 70,000 tons of garbage accumulated on the city's streets and sidewalks.

He said his decision was based on detailed reports from state commissioner of health, the state director of civil defense, the mayor, the New York City board of health and the mayor's emergency control board.

Rockefeller had conferred all day in a closed session with Lindsay, mediators, union officials and others before making his decision.

The mayor sprung John J. DeLury, president of the striking Uniformed Sanitationmen's Union, from jail to meet with Rockefeller and other union bargainers at the governor's city offices.

"The situation continues to deepen," Lindsay said. "The emergency continues to worsen."

DeLury said he was "surprised" to be called from jail where he was serving a 15-day sentence for refusing to obey a back-to-work court order to end the illegal strike.

It was the first health emergency called in the city since a tug strike cut off all fuel shipments in 1946.

Rat Population

The board of health informed Lindsay that the 70,000 tons of refuse has increased fire incidence by 700% and would cause an explosion in the city's rat population.

It also warned of clogged sewers, flooding, and a breakdown of sewage treatment plants and the resulting spread of typhoid, dysentery and hepatitis.

In addition the board warned that snow, which is normally cleared by the garbage men, would immobilize all types of emergency vehicles. Luckily, a snowstorm predicted for Thursday bypassed the city.

3 Railroads Operating Under Strike Conditions

By the Associated Press

Three major railroads conducted restricted opperations under strike conditions Thursday as a federal court restraining order prevented the walkout from spreading to a fourth road, the Union Pacific.

U.S. District Judge Robert Van Pelt in Lincoln, Neb., temporarily restrained the Union Pacific from reducing the size of its freight train crews, a step it had ordered Tuesday. Van Pelt also ordered the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen not to strike until good faith negotiations on the issues had taken place.

Already struck over the dispute on the size of freight train crews are the Missouri Pacific Lines, its subsidiary the Texas & Pacific, and the Seaboard Coast Lines.

All have continued to operate freight service with supervisory personnel, but with many employes honoring picket lines, and others laid off, none of the roads could say exactly how many trains they had running. There weren't any clerks on the job to make checks.

With operations sharply restricted, only war supplies and perishables were being handled.

The Missouri Pacific headquarters at St. Louis said it had received reports of sabotage from widely separated points. A spokesman added some employes had said they had been threatened with violence if they reported to work.

Among the incidents reported was the derailment of a locomotive at Geneseo, Kan., by a picket who threw a switch in front of the moving engine; a switch thrown open in front of a train at Killona, La., 30 miles west of New Orleans, but the train was stopped by a red light before hitting the switch; a man arrested at Dupo, Ill., accused of breaking windows in a locomotive, and numerous instances of slashed air hoses, broken windows and other minor vandalism.

Thomas W. Rice, president of Seaboard, called on President Johnson to appoint an emergency board to settle the dispute quickly.

Court Order Averts UP Railroad Strike

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Staff Writer

Federal District Judge Robert Van Pelt Thursday averted a strike against the Union Pacific Railroad by ordering the railroad and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen to enter into "good faith" negotiations over new work rules.

Van Pelt granted the brotherhood's request for an order to temporarily suspend Union Pacific's new rules calling for a reduction in size of yard and road service crews. The rules had gone into effect Tuesday.

The railroad responded by calling back to work 1,000 trainmen in 13 states who had lost their jobs when the Union Pacific trimmed a switchman from yard crews and a brakeman from road crews.

Attorneys for the brotherhood told the court during a hearing Wednesday that the union had no choice but to strike if the rules were not suspended.

"I give great weight to keeping transportation going and public interest requires that negotiations be attempted," the judge said in ruling from the bench.

He ordered the union not to strike until "honest, sincere" efforts are made to resolve the issues through negotiations.

Brotherhood spokesmen had charged that Union Pacific has refused to enter into "meaningful" negotiations since the crew changes were first announced two years ago.

"The brotherhood should be able to negotiate with the Union Pacific alone and not on a national basis and the railroad should be able to expect some results" from the bargaining sessions, Van Pelt said.

He noted that while the Union Pacific has a right to cut back work crew sizes, the brotherhood has a right to strike.

Warning the brotherhood that it should be able to enter negotiations ready to make some concessions, Van Pelt commented, "This is a changing world.

"The fact that somebody has a job today is no reason to believe that it should exist in perpetuity."

He said the railroads' importance in the future "will in large part depend on the demands of the unions."

Van Pelt said his order to the brotherhood to desist from striking encompassed "slowdowns, sick-strikes, or anything that is not of good faith intent."

The Union Pacific, likewise, was enjoined by the court from initiating any "self help" actions during the negotiating period.

Van Pelt said that the trial to be held later on the brotherhood's request for a permanent injunction against the Union Pacific should not delay collective bargaining efforts.

The brotherhood Tuesday struck Seaboard, Missouri-Pacific and Texas and Pacific Railroads. All stemmed from railroad reductions in work crew sizes.

Khe Sanh Post To Be Defended At All Costs

(C) New York Times News Service

Saigon — The Marine outpost of Khe Sanh will be defended at all costs, U.S. military officials said. They reviewed allied strategy in the light of the fall of the nearby Special Forces camp at Lang Vei and decided to remain in Khe Sanh. "We feel we can handle it," said one officer. Other U.S. officials said they believe the Viet Cong expected their lunar new year's offensive to bring the Vietnam war to a decisive conclusion.

Hanoi Wants U.S. Proof

Hong Kong — (Agence France Presse) North Vietnam was still prepared to open peace talks "as soon as the United States has proved that it has really stopped unconditionally the bombings" and other acts of war against North Vietnam, Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh said. (Another story on Page 2)

Korea To Expand Forces

Seoul — The South Korean government contending that infiltration from North Korea is aimed at turning the country into another Vietnam, announced a vast military expansion program. Steps are reported underway to increase the militia to 2.5 million men.

De Gaulle Takes Dive

Toulon, France—Presidnet de Gaulle took a 48-minute underwater cruise aboard a sister ship of the submarine Minerve, which vanished with 52 men last month. The cruise followed a memorial service for the lost sailors.

RFK Flails War

Washington — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., mounted the most sweeping and detailed indictment of the war and of the administration yet heard from any leading figure in either party. In a speech in Chicago he denied "any prospect" of a military victory in Vietnam. But he said nothing to change his refusal to oppose President Johnson's re-election. (More on Page 6)

$3 Billion In Aid Requested

Washington — President Johnson asked Congress to approve just over $3 billion in foreign aid spending for the next fiscal year and another $100 million for military aid to South Korea in the next six months. U.S. Officials Studying New Hanoi Statement

World News

Washington (AP) — State Department officials are studying a new statement by the foreign minister of North Vietnam indicating his government may wish to keep peace exchanges going with the United States alongside the Communist military offensive.

The statement, in the form of an interview broadcast from Hanoi Thursday, moves the North Vietnamese bargaining position slightly beyond where the foreign minister left it six weeks ago.

The United States has taken the position since last Sunday that peace probes have been rendered meaningless by the Communist offensive against key cities in South Vietnam and by the massive North Vietnamese challenge to the U.S. outpost at Khe Sanh.

President Johnson was reported Thursday to have ended a ban on bombing military targets at Hanoi and Haiphong. The ban was imposed about a month ago with word to the North Vietnamese that they were signals of U.S. interest in damping down the war and opening talks.

Due to bad weather, military sources said, the lifting of the ban would not necessarily mean an immediate return to attacks in or near the two cities.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Sunday the evidence of Hanoi's offensive operations is "that they are not seriously interested at the present time in talking about peaceful settlement."

It is against this background that Thursday's remarks by Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh are being analyzed.

The initial reaction is that there has been no fundamental shift in the North Vietnamese position.

Trinh accused the United States of using an apparent investigation of Hanoi's position on peace talks as "a maneuver aimed at appeasing world opinion and at camouflaging its attempts to continue and escalate its aggressive war in Vietnam."

Trinh had said Dec. 29 that after unconditional cessation of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and other acts of war, there will be talks on problems concerned. The nature of the problems was not made clear.

Thursday Trinh said, "They are the problems in connection with the settlement of the Vietnam problem on the basis of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Vietnam; there also are other questions which would be raised by the two parties."

Short of Agenda

To U.S. authorities the language still is far short of suggesting an agenda but does seem to indicate that North Vietnam would be willing to discuss issues raised by the United States.

On the question of timing, Trinh repeated, "the talks will start as soon as the United States will demonstrate the reality of the unconditional halt of the bombings and of all other acts of war against the DRV (North Vietnam)."

According to the summary circulated in the State Department, Trinh offered nothing new on the main issue raised by President Johnson in the exchanges so far—that is, would North Vietnam refrain from rushing fresh reinforcements to its troops in the South if the United States stopped the bombing, and would it hold its troops firmly in check along the North-South buffer zone?

STORY AT RIGHT

'I WILL RUN TO WIN' . . . Wallace announces candidacy.

Wallace Candidacy Gives 'Real Choice'

Washington (AP) — George C. Wallace formally unveiled his third party candidacy for president Thursday, saying he offers the voters "a real choice.'

"I fully think we can win," he said.

The 48-year-old former Alabama governor told reporters he stands for an end to lawlessness, against federal interference with the states and with the free enterprise system, and favors a tough foreign policy including winning allied support for the U.S. effort in Vietnam.

Declaring his candidacy is irrevocable and will not be withdrawn as it was four year ago, Wallace said he is running to fulfill a pledge to Alabama voters because "I don't think there is going to be 10 cents worth of difference," between President Johnson and the Republican nominee.

"Even if we lost, we'd be no worse off," he said. "We have all to gain and nothing to lose. I fully think we can win in the Electoral College."

Asked which party he thinks he will hurt most, Wallace said in the South he will hurt the Republicans by splitting opposition to the Johnson administration.

But in the country as a whole, he said "the great mass of support that supports us have been those who have traditionally supported the Democratic Party."

Wallace said he will run as a Democrat only in Alabama and will appear as an independent candidate on as many other ballots as possible.

REACTION IS POLES APART

Montgomery, Ala. (UPI) — George Wallace's entry into the presidential race drew poles-apart reaction Thursday.

"Wonderful," said Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox. "He's a great man. I wish he were president."

"It's a sad thing," countered E. D. Nixon, Alabama president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Wallace would probably take votes away from the Republicans in the South.

House Republican leader Gerald Ford of Michigan, said Wallace was bound to help President Johnson.

Johnson Asks $3 Billion In Foreign Aid

. . . $100 MILLION TO STRENGTHEN SOUTH KOREAN DEFENSES

Washington (AP) — President Johnson asked a reluctant Congress Thursday for $3 billion in new foreign aid funds, including $100 million immediately to strengthen South Korea's defense against the Communist North.

Johnson's special Korean arms plea was about the only surprise in a foreign aid message which sought $2.9 billion for the global program next fiscal year—$2.5 billion in economic assistance and $420 million in military.

The President declared the worldwide aid effort is "as important and as essential to the security of this nation as our military defenses." He contended that fighting hunger, disease and illiteracy among the masses in underdeveloped lands curbs the causes of wars.

But administration officials freely acknowledged omens of trouble again in Congress, which last year whacked nearly $1 billion from Johnson's $3.2-billion request. His new program is about $750 million more than was voted for the current fiscal year ending June 30.

In his new package Johnson earmarked $480 million in economic assistance to fight "the other war" in South Vietnam. However, there was a hint amid concern over the recent Communist assaults on Vietnamese cities and the Korean crisis that the President may seek more foreign aid later.

South Korean Anxiety

South Korean anxiety about U.S. policy has mounted near fever pitch in recent days. Seoul officials have complained that Washington seems more interested in recovering the captured U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo and its crew from North Korea than in mounting North Korean intrusions into the South.

Stating that "the internal peace and order of this steadfast ally is once again threatened from the North," Johnson proposed "that Congress appropriate immediately an additional $100 million for military assistance to the Republic of Korea."

The funds, to come out of current-year appropriations, would be in addition to the present annual level of $150-$160 million in American arms aid to South Korea.

The additional money would be spent on airplanes, antiaircraft gear, naval radar, patrol craft, ammunition and other supplies.

At the same time, Johnson indicated U.S. economic assistance to South Korea will be cut back in future years as the Asian ally becomes more able to sustain herself.

Last Week Is Bloodiest Of War On Both Sides

Saigon (UPI)—Figures announced by Allied headquarters Thursday established last week as the bloodiest seven-day period of the Vietnam war for both sides.

The battle statistics rivaled for bloodshed the closing days of the siege of Dien Bien Phu 14 years ago when Communist armies crushed a French force of 16,000 men in the decisive engagement of the first Indochina war.

The report Thursday said the Tet lunar new year offensive through the week ended last Saturday cost the Communists 15,515 men killed.

Allied casualties, also a weekly record, were 1,200 killed—416 Americans and 784 South Vietnamese. Some 2,757 Americans and 2,230 South Vietnamese were wounded.

The report said U.S. troop strength hit 500,000 men last week, only 50,000 short of the goal for this year. Communist manpower was placed at a maximum of 480,000 military personnel and 85,000 political cadre.

The casualties announced Thursday covered only the initial stages of the Communist offensive which began Jan. 29.

The totals through last Saturday increased American losses since January, 1961 to 17,296 killed and 108,428 wounded, of whom 57,647 were hurt badly enough to require some kind of hospital treatment.

150,000 Grad Students Expected To Be Drafted

Washington (UPI)—Education Commissioner Harold Howe complained Thursday that many graduate students enrolled in the nation's colleges can expect to be drafted in the next year because of changes in the Selective Service law.

Howe told a House special education subcommittee that up to 150,000 of the 492,000 college students expected to enroll in graduate courses next school year would be inducted under the new law.

The measure, passed by Congress last year, provided deferrals only for those graduate students who are studying subjects defined by the National Security Council as critical to the national interest. The council has not yet defined those deferral areas.

"I expect that the council will be under pressure to put sciences and math in (deferral areas) and leave humanities out," said Howe. "From the long range view of the educational health of the nation, this is not the best policy.

"The solution would be to find a way of random selection. This would be fair and equitable," Howe said. Congress considered and rejected the random or lottery system.

Meet Edward Martinko, Medical Student
He Enjoys Botany and Swimming
He Reads 1,400 Words a Minute

Edward Martinko is a graduate student at the Colorado University Medical Center in Denver. Currently studying anatomy, on a National Science Foundation Fellowship, he is faced with a tremendous amount of technical reading. It's no wonder that he enrolled in a rapid reading course.

Edward started the Reading Dynamics course reading 177 words a minute with 60 per cent comprehension. He now reads at rates in excess of 1,490 words a minute with 90 per cent comprehension—and this in difficult medical books.

He says of the course: "Reading Dynamics is a definite asset in study techniques and helps concentration as well as interest in most types of material. The atmosphere in the classes is conducive to learning . . . The survey methods have proved very useful."

Gas Tanks Nearly Dry, Filler Cap Reported Off

. . . At Time State Plane Crashed, FAA Probe Shows

Nebraska News

Washington (AP) — The Nebraska state executive plane that crashed in the Platte River Dec. 2 near North Platte was nearly out of gas and a filler cap on a main wing tank was off, the Federal Aviation Administration says.

The new $215,000 plane, piloted by C. Howard Vest, state aeronautics director, crashed on a sand bar in 10 to 14 inches of water near Lee Bird Field at North Platte about 9 p.m.

Cap Dangling

An FAA report prepared by W. A. Murphey Jr., principal FAA operations inspector at Lincoln, said both wing tanks were nearly dry. The filler cap on the right wing tank was off and dangling by its chain, Murphey said, and gasoline stains trailed off the wing and across the right rear stabilizer.

The right wing was broken near the tank and bent flat back over the fuselage by the crash. The left wing was bent and wrinkled.

Vest suffered head and facial injuries and a temporary loss of memory.

Six witnesses said Vest just lifted the Aero-Commander 680 off the Lee Bird Field when they heard the engines cut, then surge back up, then die completely.

Took On 108 Gals.

The FAA report said Vest had taken on 108 gallons of fuel at Scottsbluff on a flight from Oshkosh to Lincoln. Vest said instruments showed he had about 120 gallons of fuel as he approached the field at North Platte.

A maintenance bulletin attached to the FAA report said there have been a number of incidents of fuel siphoning in flight by the Aero-Commander 680 because of poor maintenance and service practices.

The faulty filler caps are not usually detached on ground inspection, the maintenance bulletin said, and partial collapse or distortion of the craft's bladder-type fuel tanks can give erroneous and misleading fuel readings.

Murphey said the main fuel tank bladder was collapsed He said the center tank fuel line was broken off and the tank was dry, and said the right outboard tank was ruptured and had a small amount of fuel in one corner.

Put In Right Tank

The 108 gallons taken on at Scottsbluff were put in the right wing tank, the report said, before a fuel tank ran dry. The report said the attendant offered to get more fuel but that Vest said 150 gallons would be enough for the 360-mile trip to Lincoln, two hours away.

Reports said the plane consumes about 48 to 55 gallons an hour.

Vest was alone when the plane crashed. He had let State Aeronautics Commission member Chester Fliesbach off at Scottsbluff and Jess Quinn off at North Platte. The FAA report made no reference to the purpose of the trip.

The report was turned over to the National Transportation Safety Board which will determine cause of the crash and whether it calls for any modifications in flight procedures in the future.

Vest was returning to Lincoln after piloting the commission members on a combined airport inspection and weekend hunting trip in western Nebraska.

He was unconscious for four days following the accident and has since said he still cannot recall details of the crash.

Auer: Mistreatment Of Seal Could Have Caused Trouble

By the Associated Press

Mistreatment of the rubber seal of the filler cap on the state's demolished grand commander airplane could have caused it to fly off in flight and bring a fuel starvation, John Auer of the State Aeronautics Department said Thursday.

W. A. Murphey Jr., principal operations inspector for the Federal Aviation Administration in Lincoln, issued his report on the crash Thursday.

Attached to it was a bulletin supplied by the FAA which reported several incidents of in-flight siphoning caused by poor maintenance and service practices on Aero-Commanders.

"If it were an older plane the rubber seal could wear down just from sheer wear," said Auer, who supervised the maintenance of the airplane. "But this was a new plane. We hadn't even thought anything about wear. In a new airplane it would take some mistreatment."

Auer said there was not knowledge of such mistreatment of the $215,000 plane, acquired only about a month before the Dec. 2 accident in which Aeronautics Director C. Howard Vest, the pilot and sole occupant, was seriously injured.

"It is possible that the cap wasn't secured in Scottsbluff," Auer said. Vest took on 108 gallons of fuel into the right wing tank in Scottsbluff.

The report said that the right wing tank collapsed and that its cap was dangling from the tank.

Auer concurred that the collapsed bladder could give an erroneous reading on the fuel gauge in the cockpit.

The Royal Globe Insurance Co. has agreed to replace the plane with a new grand commander.

Vest reported that the sight in his injured left eye is improving and that he took Nebraska Air National Guard jets up twice during the unit's drill last Sunday.

Crop Holdbacks Not Answer To Problem, Ag Group Told

Kansas City (AP)—Rep. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., said Thursday the farmer can get a good price only through a market in short supply.

"But he suggested that crop holdbacks are not the way to do it.

"Once the grain is produced, individual holding back doesn't work too well since generally the middleman can wait," Andrews said.

"He knows the load is on the farmer, or if it's in a government stockpile without firm release criteria, he knows politics can be applied to get it out."

Andrews made the remarks in a speech at the conference of national farm leaders.

The congressman made no reference to a national farm organization attempt to boost grain prices by holding grains off the market.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman told the group farmers can expect no meaningful farm-aid legislation in the future without strong presidential leadership.

On the basis of the record, only a Democratic president would provide such leadership, he said.

"In short, the presidential election this year is more important to farmers than ever before in history," Freeman said.

The way to short supply the market, Andrews said, is through more aggressive sales, production cutbacks, collective farmer bargaining or a workable combination of all three.

The first need, he said is for farm organizations to stop fighting among themselves and with nonfarm groups, and to "sit down and try to work out a solution."

Hamburg Mayor Dies In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Mayor Reiley Rogers of Hamburg, Iowa, died at a hospital here Wednesday night.

Mayor Rogers, 69, was reelected to another term last year. He had operated a plumbing service at Hamburg for 40 years.

Services were scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday in Hamburg.

'BOBBED WIRE' BUFF IN BAYARD

Fred Beltner of Bayard displays some of the 600 varieties of barbed wire—many used to call it "bobbed wire"—he has collected since he returned to a hobby he actually began more than a half-century ago. Barbed wire collecting has become increasingly popular in the plains states. Beltner says about 1,000 varieties of barbed wire have been manufactured.

Uncovered Gravesites Reach 15

By GARY CLAXTON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Seward — The number of unmarked graves discovered by construction workers here Thursday totalled 15 as excavation work neared completion.

Workmen digging a foundation at the site of David Dorm under construction at Concordia Teachers College discovered the first of the 15 gravesites containing remains of eight occupants about noon Tuesday, generating a rash of questions, rumors and remembrances from local old-timers.

The final skeleton, found Thursday morning, appeared to be the best preserved and contained some of the most interesting relics, according to Mrs. Jane Graff, a rural Seward resident, descendent of one of Seward's earliest pioneer families and author of the Seward and Seward County centennial history, "On a Bend of the River."

A substance of a sandy or salty nature lay among the bones of the rib cage giving rise to speculation the body had been embalmed, she said.

Around the skeleton were large pieces of material from a Union soldier's uniform — some still sporting the leg stripe, she said, and a large button, assumably from the pants, engraved with "Goodyear N.R. Co., May 6, 1851."

Well Preserved Casket

Pieces of a well preserved wooden casket and the shattered top glass surrounded the skeleton, she said.

Mrs. Graff assembled information Thursday delved on a quick spree through the archives of the State Historical Society and maintained she had identified the first two skeletons uncovered — those of a large man and a small child.

"When I was told that some graves had been found," she said, "I knew that they were those of Robert T. Gale, Seward County's first homesteader who died in the spring of 1868, and his infant son who died just about the same time."

Saying she based her original supposition largely on intuition, Mrs. Graff said, "The year of Gale's death was about the time the hills just to the west of the homestead were beginning to take on the form of a town," she said.

No Formal Cemetery

"But there was no formal organization, community cemetery and such at that time," she explained. "It was customary to bury a family member on a high spot, usually on a corner of the homestead property."

Additional area residents could have been interned on the hill with Gale for lack of a better spot, she said.

When the city laid out a new cemetery about a mile north of the present town, she said, many people did not have the $15 for a plot and many families had perished leaving no one to request or pay for a move.

Mrs. Graff positively identified the location of the gravesites as being on a portion of the original Gale homestead. Her identification of the skeletons rested primarily on the location of the graves.

Two plots separated the man from the baby, she said. These could have been planned for Gale's wife and daughter. However, Mrs. Gale remarried.

Three empty caskets uncovered at the head of the two skeletons, could have been the original burial spots of Mrs. Gale's parents and brother, who lived with the Gales during the time and on the homestead for many years thereafter, Mrs. Graff theorized.

Mrs. Gale's maiden name was Wooley, she said.

"The next step is to track down the Wooley gravesites," she said. "Then we'll know if the parents bodies were moved to a new location."

Faulty Wiring Blamed

Hay Springs (AP) — A short circuit in wiring leading to the compressor in a walk-in cooler has been blamed for a $100,000 fire which destroyed the Roades A. and G. Grocery store.

NEBRASKA: Temperatures for the five-day period, Saturday through Wednesday, will average near normal with only minor day to day changes. Normal lows are in the lower to middle teens and normal highs are in the 30s in the northeast to about 40s in the southwest. Precipitation will average .10 inch or less in the central and little if any is likely in the east. Precipitation will occur as occasional light rain or snow most likely about Sunday or Monday.

KANSAS: For the five-day period, Saturday through Wednesday, temperatures will average near or slightly below normal with only minor day to day changes. Normal lows are in the middle teens in the extreme west to lower to middle 20s elsewhere. Normal highs range from the lower to middle 40s. Precipitation will average .10 inch or less occurring as occasional rain or snow mostly about Sunday or Monday.

Summary of Conditions

The latest surface map shows a high cell covering southwest Montana and western Wyoming and moving little. A cold front is now on line from northeast Minnesota through southeast North Dakota to northwest North Dakota into Canada and moving by noon Friday to a line from southeast Michigan, northern Missouri and southeast Nebraska to west central South Dakota and northward.

Friday forenoon skies will be variably cloudy in eastern Nebraska and elsewhere mostly fair. After this time period, skies will be mostly partly cloudy but continued fair much of the period in far western Nebraska. Temperatures will turn colder in most of east and central Nebraska Friday, but otherwise little change. Temperatures are expected to be a little warmer in most sections Saturday. Little or no precipitation is expected throughout the period.

3 Annual Meetings Near For Methodist Women

. . . Sessions Scheduled At Omaha

Omaha — Three annual meetings bringing together Methodist women from across Nebraska and the south central United States will be held at First Methodist Church in Omaha during the week of Feb. 19.

Approximately 175 delegates and 300 visitors are expected at the annual meeting of the South Central Jurisdiction Woman's Society of Christian Service Feb. 20-22. It has been six years since Nebraska Methodist women hosted the eight-state meeting. Delegates will attend from New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

Texan To Preside

Presiding over the jurisdiction meeting will be Mrs. C. C. Coffee of Lubbock, Texas. Theme of the meeting will be "Human Rights." Speakers will include Keith J. Leenhouts, municipal judge from Royal Oak, Mich.; Dr. Bruce D. Rahtjen, associate professor of Biblical Theology at Saint Paul School of Theology, Kansas City, Mo.; and Nebraska Methodist Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland.

The 27th annual meeting of the Nebraska Woman's Society of Christian Service will be held Feb. 22-23, immediately following the jurisdiction meeting. Approximately 1,300 women from across the state are expected at the session.

In charge will be Mrs. Russell Brown of Trumbull, Nebraska Woman's Society president. Theme will be "The World Is Waiting." The Nebraska Society includes approximately 28,000 women from 410 local societies and 70 local units of the Wesleyan Service Guild, a division of the Woman's Society for employed and professional women.

Service Guild

The Wesleyan Service Guild will move into First Methodist Church in Omaha Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 24 and 25, for its "Annual Weekend." Mrs. A. C. Barton of Newman Grove, Guild secretary, will be the presiding official.

The Nebraska and Jurisdiction women will co-sponsor a banquet Wednesday night, Feb. 21, at Peony Park Ballroom. Speaker will be Dr. Roberta Rice, a Nebraska medical missionary on furlough from Seoul, Korea. Dr. Rice, a former surgeon at Grand Island's Veterans' Hospital, will also be speaking at each of the three annual meetings.

Beckham Given Okay To Appear At Alliance Show

New Orleans, La. (UPI)—Thomas Edward Beckham Thursday was granted permission to return to Alliance, Neb., to fulfill a weekend concert series of personal appearances.

Beckham, an evangelist and country music singer, was given court orders to return to New Orleans next Thursday for a scheduled grand jury appearance after putting on three country music shows Saturday at Alliance.

Beckham is to testify as a witness in the probe of President John Kennedy's assassination.

At Alliance Chamber of Commerce and other officials said they know nothing of Beckham's scheduled personal appearances.

Jerry Johnson Family Receives 3 New Additions

Triplets — two girls and a boy — were born late Thursday afternoon at St. Elizabeth Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Johnson of 1112 Adams.

Mrs. Johnson, the former Patrice Pruitt, had been told in advance to expect triplets, a hospital spokesman said.

The trio weighed a total of 17.6 pounds. One of the girls and the boy each weighed 6.8 pounds and the other girl weighed 4 pounds.

According to a hospital official, the Johnsons have three other children.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It has been just a week since two Lincoln policemen were attacked at the scene of a local teenage dance. As usual, the episode produced a variety of reactions. A few people have criticized all teenagers, some have criticized the police and others have found fault with the dances.

Of course, one teenager in trouble or five do not make the rest of them bad. And the fact that trouble developed at the dance is not an indictment of the program.

The truth of it is that the dances probably stop the development of a lot of trouble. It gives the teenagers something to do and this they need, just as adults need a means of relaxing, a means of getting together and a means of simply finding enjoyment.

The fact is that there really is not enough for teenagers to do.

★

The reaction to the violence of last Friday night that appeals here is the expressed concern that the police were attacked. There simply should never be such a thing as this.

Not all teens nor all adults will ever agree in total with everything done by law-enforcement officers. These officers are human and sometimes will make mistakes or will demonstrate less good judgment than they should.

But last Friday night the officers were only trying to restore order after a few teenagers had gotten out of hand. It is even more amazing that the officers would be attacked under such circumstances.

Under any conditions, the officer should represent law and order and should be respected on that basis. Any person, teenager or adult, who would attack an officer of the law demonstrates a disdain for the democracy in which he lives.

★

The presence of an officer should be sufficient in itself to assure a peaceful and lawful situation. In the past, a police officer has generally been held in awe by young people.

In the presence of such officers, young people would not think of doing anything to draw to themselves the attention of the officer. As times go on, this awe turns to respect and it is hoped that this situation or condition still prevails today.

It is up to those officers, then, to see to it that this respect is never undeserved. An officer should never be arbitrary, unreasonable or too heavy-handed. He should treat people as free citizens who seek his protection, not persecution or abuse.

All police officers in Lincoln are well schooled in this area of personal and community relationships, in the matter of what is expected of them and in the matter of their authority and responsibility.

★

This makes being a policeman a pretty tough job. It is difficult to ascertain who has been at fault in a certain situation or when conditions that prevail at any given time are subject to police action.

The line that delineates justice is often hard to draw. The line runs down the middle between the protection of the innocent and the prosecution of those guilty of violating the law. Both things are of equal importance but they can often be difficult to differentiate between.

If the system of law and order we have is to work the way we want it to, cooperation and understanding among citizens and law officers are essential. These are or should be complementary, not competitive forces in our community.

It is this way with most people, regardless of age and it is hoped that it continues in that fashion. Violence has never been much of an answer to anything and never will be.

The Happy Medium

If you can't sleep, and you're tired of looking at 1947 B-grade movies on TV, and you're sick to the death of reading newspapers . . . why not try radio?

You remember radio. Sound but no picture. Chances are you've got one somewhere. Besides in the car.

Let's say it's 1 a.m. and you, the insomniac, are pacing around, uninterested in TV or reading. You turn on the radio —and open up a whole new world.

Did you know you can still hear those delightful programs with syrupy announcers saying, "And now the danceable, romanceable melodies of . . . coming to you from the beautiful blue room high atop the . . . hotel, just three blocks from downtown . . . ?" It's like a trip into the past.

Twirl the dial and you're in Chicago, where Franklin McCormack is reading cry-in-your-beer love poetry, or playing nostalgic 1920s tunes (the original recordings).

Twist it again and you're in Nashville, where WSM feeds the nation a steady diet of country and western music. Cincinnati plays classical music all night, and out in Salt Lake City there's a young man (you have to assume he's young, given the work he's doing) who spends all night on the phone, talking to people who call in from all over the West. They talk about their arthritis and their ulcers and their married children. No music, no news . . . just talk.

Radio preachers seem to hang out toward the top of the dial. They'll save your soul, pray for you, and sell you record albums all in one breath.

If you want to be delighted, surprised, relaxed, soothed, and just plain entertained, there's nothing quite like wee-hours radio, truly the happy medium.

Ross Gives Good Pointers

Nebraska's Republican National Committeeman Donald Ross of Omaha made some strong points in an interview this week. The reserved but highly effective Omahan, a national committee vice chairman, spoke of the essentiality of diversity within a party.

His own national prominence sprang from his efforts to secure such diversity for the party at the height of the conservative stronghold on the GOP. This stronghold had driven some of the moderate and liberal elements out of the GOP.

Ross is correct in maintaining that a party has to make itself big enough to accommodate a wide range of points of view. Rather than a weakness as it might first appear to be, this is the strength that can mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Ross also took a pot-shot at the presidential primary system as it now exists in various parts of the country. The primaries serve the purpose of allowing public expression but they have not proven to be a really valuable political tool.

Basically, the primaries simply cannot reflect as it might be hoped either the public attitude or the political reality of the day as it might exist in the November general election or even at the national party conventions before that. Mainly, the primaries are a political popularity contest that tends to muddy the waters and unduly affect the future of potential candidates. The role of presidential primaries in our national political life is certainly subject to question.

Wanting A Voice

Lincoln, Neb.

Although the anti-democracy forces can breathe more easily now since two more referendum attempts have failed, the fact remains that it would have been a miracle if these two under-financed, under-publicized petition drives had succeeded in the ridiculously short time limit allowed.

Instead of welcoming participatory democracy, our elected mandarins are afraid of it and do everything they can to discourage it. They seem to feel that the whole structure of society would collapse if the people were allowed a voice in government.

The hard economic facts of political life have decreed that office-seekers will be carbon copies of one another and all so-called "campaigning on the issues" will be merely the minor frictions of establishment factions.

The devices of direct legislation — initiative, referendum, and recall—were devised by wise men who recognized that in a plutocracy, the majority would have no voice in the government. These devices were designed to give the people a chance. It isn't much of a chance because it still takes money, organization and time, but it's all the people have. When direct legislation is derided as unpatriotic and stupid (as it was by our state government last year), the result is alienation and cynicism. The refusal of the establishment in our city and state to heed the extraordinarily large number of direct legislation petitions is probably more dangerous than they think.

Being unable to attend the 19th annual Omaha All-City Junior and Senior Music Festival, we wish to express our heartfelt appreciation for the Sunday coverage on KUON (ETC) Channel 12.

Our hats are off to the teachers, music instructors, visiting conductors and everyone else who had a part in presenting the full two-hour program to the public. It took long hours and a great deal of effort for many people.

We have two grandaughters who participated, one in the junior choir and the other in senior choir, and it was a delight to see 2,300 youngsters spending their time and talents to entertain the public instead of other pursuits.

Right To Worship

Lincoln, Neb.

We hear so much about poverty's being the cause of unrest and rioting in this country. In our past history, we had more hunger and privation in proportion to the population than we have today. Also, today we have agencies to help take care of these people which we did not have in the early days. The more money people get, the more they want.

In my opinion, it is greed and the activity of the communists working to destroy our present form of government, and also the administration making promises they cannot fulfill. Laws cannot change the way people think about each other. Only the Lord can do that, if we are willing to let Him.

It would help if the courts would stop interfering with our right to worship. Worship cannot be restricted to home and church buildings. Worship is something that has to be carried on wherever you are, seven days a week, or you are not living according to the Lord's will.

Ah! 'Tis February with its low-scudding clouds and slate sky; its brief thaws and a change in the air. Although I know there is more winter ahead, it is good to remember February is a short month and the one that precedes March. I have no special dislikes for winter. In fact, I suppose I could make a list of how to make winter a favorite season and honestly believe the list to be accurate. The first one would say, "Walk in the snow where the delicate wind-blown ripples glitter like a sprinkling of diamonds and change the contours of the land."

Design a snowman with some small lad or lassie but always make him smiling. A grumpy snowman does not reflect the proper spirit of winter or a child's idea of happiness.

Notice the reflections of the sunlight as it makes elongated blocks of light on the floor, streaming through the windows like an invisible brush making bold strokes.

Buy an artificial pink geranium, or maybe two or three, and fill your window ledge with a spot of cheer.

Set a bowl of fresh fruit on the table and surprise the family by keeping it filled.

Rearrange a room and bring out old brass and pewter or china keepsakes for display and enjoyment by the family.

Listen for a small stream that bursts from winter stillness and splashes down the hollow.

Watch the snow melt from the dooryard, leaving delicate lacy edges framing the tarnished landscape.

Bring out a favorite cookbook and make a new food dish to set before the man of the house.

Write a letter to a friend extolling the beauty of winter's wonderland. By so doing, you will convince yourself that winter is not a dreary season, after all.

Go window shopping and let the bold, bright spring colors leap right into your heart.

Buy a valentine for your spouse and surprise him with words of love.

What a great medium for good entertainment television can be. I seldom listen to it unless a special show of interest is to be presented. The dedication of the Ford Theater where Abraham Lincoln was assassinated was one of those shows. The interior of the theater was especially well filmed and the talent was befitting the occasion.

The flag-draped box occupied by the Lincolns, vacant as it should have been, seemed to have an echo of the past . . . faraway words that said, "Here is yesterday . . . the smiles and dreams that were realized, the tears and problems that were left. Everything is finished, everything is at rest with nothing to be added or taken away."

"Some day we may go to that theater if we should be so fortunate as to travel the distance," I told The Farmer . . . then added, "Maybe when we retire."

☆ ☆ ☆

So many places to go, so many things to do when we retire. The present time is so taken up with the necessity of making a living that retirement time is the only time left. I am fully aware my list of things to do in retirement far exceeds the days I will have. That will present a problem just as it does now. At the moment we are too old for the jet set and too young to ride tired, limping camels in a cross-country caravan. Shrimp boats are too slow and rocket ships scare me to death. Passenger trains are being taken off the tracks and taxis are too expensive.

How good it is to sit at home and travel around the world. Long live television!

Sir Winston Heads The List Of Greats

NEW YORK — According to a poll of the members of the Overseas Press Club of America, who should know, the man who made the greatest imprint for good on our times was Winston Churchill.

Next in line, in the voting, came Franklin D. Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy, Jonas Salk, Mahatma Gandhi, Eleanor Roosevelt, Albert Einstein, Pope John XXIII, Albert Schweitzer, Harry S. Truman, Martin Luther King and Dag Hammarskjold.

Some 302 made the list. After the first 12 came names such as Adlai Stevenson, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur, Helen Keller and George C. Marshall. There were votes, too, for Joan Baez, Fidel Castro (who spoke at the club when he could still rate a visa) Ho Chi Minh and Joe Dimaggio. Excepting Dimag, I tend to wonder what "good" these also-rans provided.

I have no quarrel with the designation by my fellow club members of Sir Winston as the man who did the most good in our times. But one nagging thought remains: The British people couldn't wait to get rid of him, politically, once the big war was over.

He was America's favorite Englishman, much more of a symbol than, say, George VI. But everywhere I went at that time, there was a feeling of "Well, old Winnie's doing a fine job, but of course we'll have to get rid of him as soon as this ugly mess is over."

Happened just that way. Can't say, at this writing, how much better they've done since then.

If my lone vote had prevailed, which is an undemocratic thought, I would have seen that Harry S. Truman was at the top of the list. Mr. Truman faced more crises than any president or free world leader before or since:

—He opened the Atomic Age by consenting to finish the development of the atomic bomb, which had begun under F.D.R., and by agreeing with heavy heart to use it to end World War II.

—He okayed the greatest humanitarian effort in history — far, far beyond anything Churchill was capable of — the Marshall Plan. Then he capped it with the Point 4 Program of do-it-yourself. Whole nations in Europe and the Far East rose like Lazarus.

—He told the communists to knock it off in Greece and Turkey or we'd fight, and they did. On the other side of the world, he told a different crop of communists that we'd fight them, since they had crossed the 38th Parallel in Korea. We did, to their dismay.

—And long before Robert McNamara, he reaffirmed the authority of the civilian government over the military by firing the most independent and beloved soldier of his time, Douglas MacArthur.

Old "Give 'Em Hell" Harry was a bigger man, in my estimation, than Sir Winston.

North Korean Premier Linked With Castro; Hatred For United States A Common Bond

(Editor's Note: Jack Anderson is now in Korea reporting on the Far Eastern crisis. He will go to Vietnam next.)

SEOUL—The United States probably hasn't heard the last of Kim Il Sung, the fat-faced dictator of North Korea, who plunged the world into a new crisis by seizing one of America's most secret and sensitive ships, the Pueblo.

He is described in intelligence reports here as a megalomanic, obsessed with hatred of the U.S.A. Those who have watched his behavior closely say he is frustrated over his inability to unify all Korea under his rule. For this failure, of course, he blames the United States.

This means he can be expected to strike again—when he decides he can get away with it. But like all megalomaniacs, he has shown a tendency to exaggerate his importance and miscalculate his power. His next blow, therefore, may again be irresponsibly dangerous, such as a second front across the 38th Parallel. It was to pick up information regarding such a move that the USS Pueblo was hovering off the North Korean coast.

Meanwhile, Kim has called upon his communist allies around the world to strike blows at the United States, as part of his proposed worldwide strategy to split up American forces.

The most likely response would come from Cuba's Fidel Castro, who has developed a special bond with Kim Il Sung. The two comic-opera communist czars have become ideological soul mates.

Inside the communist world, the North Korean-Cuban ties have become as close as those that bind Red China and Albania. Kim and Castro are united by their common predicament, half a world apart. Both burn with revolutionary ardor, yet both have botched up the job of governing. Both are stimulated by the belligerent language of Peking, but both are hamstrung by economic agreements with Moscow.

☆ ☆ ☆

The strongest bond of all is their common hatred for the United States.

Typically, Kim Il Sung has given his people more propaganda than progress. He has tried to rally them behind what he likes to call his "Flying Horse" program for building a glorious nation. The flying horse is supposed to charge ahead at a faster pace than all others. Unhappily for the weary, overworked North Korean people, the flying horse has never made it past the first lap.

The astonishing dimensions of his failure are described in an intelligence report.

"Kim Il Sung's economy," declares the report, "has declined dramatically over the last few years, primarily because of a drop in the growth of industrial production.

"Meanwhile, Kim Il Sung's agriculture production could not take up the slack, was barely able to maintain its normal levels, and could not offset the dramatic decline in industrial growth.

"When one stops to realize that North Korea was bequeathed at the end of World War II almost the entire industrial power base and industrial resources of the peninsula of Korea, one can get an idea of how dramatic Kim Il Sung's failures have been. And when one realizes that the Republic of South Korea began its independent life in 1946 with no industrial power and no proven industrial resources, its performance over the last 20 years is a modern miracle.

"As year after year went by," the intelligence report continues, "Kim Il Sung was faced by a tremendous loss of face as the Republic of South Korea began to catch up and, in some ways, to surpass it. Kim Il Sung's remedy for his failures has been to tighten his police controls over every aspect of life in North Korea."

The report cites Kim's loss of face at home as probably the chief reason for his belligerent breast-beating on the international stage.

Not long ago, according to U.S. intelligence, Kim purged the moderates from his government and installed a hard-headed military group in power. It is a coincidence worth mentioning that Castro has now concluded a similar purge.

Like Castro, Kim also has a militant younger brother, Kim Yong Chu, who was put in charge of the purge. First to be ousted were the No. 4 and No. 5 men in the North Korean government, Park Kum Chol and Lee Hyo Sun, who had been guiding the communist campaign against South Korea.

The names are meaningless to most Americans, but their ouster no doubt was the prelude to the seizure of the Pueblo. They had not been militant enough to suit other firebrands in Pyongyang. Their successors are now taking risks that could touch off still new explosions in this hostile land.

The intelligence reports pretty well agree that Kim Il Sung, after warning U.S. spy ships to stay out of his waters, got carried away by his own hysteria and seized the Pueblo as a "target of opportunity."

RFK Calls U.S. Effort Lion Fighting Jungle Rot

Chicago (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., said Thursday that the American military effort to resolve the Vietnam war is "like sending a lion to halt an epidemic of jungle rot."

Kennedy said, "A total military victory is not within sight or around the corner. . . it is probably beyond our grasp."

Kennedy challenged observations that the recent savage fighting in South Vietnam constituted any sort of American victory.

Reported Losses

He said that the reported enemy losses "cannot be as devastating as the figures appear."

"Our intelligence chief," he said, "tells us that of 60,000 man thrown into attacks on the cities, 20,000 have been killed. If only two men have been seriously wounded for every one dead, a very conservative estimate, the entire enemy force has been put out of action."

"Who, then," he said, "is doing the fighting?"

"How ironic it is," he continued, "that our public officials at the highest levels, should claim a victory because a people whom we have given 16,000 lives, billions of dollars and almost a decade to defend, did not rise in arms against us."

"More disillusioning," he said, "and painful is the fact the population did not rise to defend its freedom against the Viet Cong. Few, if any, citizens rushed to inform their protectors of this massive infiltration."

He added that the events of the last two weeks showed that "none of the population is secure and no area is under sure control."

People's Conviction

"This has not happened because our men are not brave or effective . . . It is," he added, "because we have sought to resolve by military might a conflict whose issue depends upon the will and conviction of the South Vietnamese people.

"It is like sending a lion to halt an epidemic of jungle rot."

Kennedy recalled that the South Vietnamese senate had only one opposing vote when it defeated a proposal to lower the country's draft age from 20 to 18.

'Anyone To Argue?'

"With all the lives and resources we have poured into Vietnam," he said, "is there anyone to argue that a government with any support from its people, with any competence to rule, with any determination to defend itself, would not long ago have been victorious over an insurgent movement, however assisted from outside its borders?"

Kennedy said, "We can no longer harden our (peace) terms everytime Hanoi indicates it may be prepared to negotiate; and we must be willing to foresee a settlement which will give the Viet Cong a chance to participate in the political life of the country."

"Not because we want them to," he added, "but because that is the only way in which this struggle can be settled."

Israel, Jordan Trade Fire For Five Hours

By The Associated Press

Israeli and Jordanian artillery and machine gun units traded fire for five hours across the Jordan River Thursday.

A Jordanian spokesman claimed the Israelis turned their big guns on refugee camps.

Eight Jordanians, including a woman and two children, were reported killed and 43 wounded in the afternoon-long battle, a military spokesman in Amman said.

There was no immediate word from Tel Aviv on Israeli casualties, but the Israelis charged Jordan with touching off the fighting with a machine-gun barrage. Jordan said it monitored a broadcast in which the Israeli command announced three soldiers were killed and several others wounded.

Amman also claimed to have destroyed four Israeli tanks, a half track, several military cars and six observation posts.

The shooting followed a series of Arab sabotage raids in which the Israelis said three Israelis and four Arabs died. The border area had been relatively quiet for a week.

Employe, Family Entitled To Drive On Dealer Plates

Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer held in an opinion Thursday that vehicles with dealer's license plates may be operated for personal use by a dealer, his employes and their "immediate household family."

The opinion, prepared by Assistant Atty. Gen. James J. Duggan, said the intention of the Nebraska statute doesn't prohibit use by other members of the family.

Jefferson County Atty. Robert F. Lammers requested the opinion.

Red Cross Here Sends Gift Bags To So. Vietnam

Over 1,000 Christmas gift bags were sent to Vietnam from the Lincoln and Lancaster County area under the American Red Cross Shop Early program, Red Cross officials announced.

David Carlbom, assistant chapter manager, said that the Lancaster County Chapter had been given a quota of 1,000 bags.

More than 610,000 gift bags were sent to South Vietnam from the United Stated under the 1967 program.

The Resources Foundation was organized in 1947 and has since carried out programs directed toward industrial development of Nebraska.

State Senator, 2 Other Demos File As Delegates

Three Democrats, including State Senator Edward R. Danner of Omaha, Thursday filed with the secretary of state for election as delegates at large to the national convention, pledged to President Johnson.

Besides Danner, Alfred A. Fiedler of Omaha and Thomas L. Morrissey of Tecumseh recorded their committed filings.

Arden V. Means of Holdrege refiled for election in the May 14 primary as an uncommitted delegate at large to the Republican National Convention. He earlier filed pledged to Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann through a misunderstanding of his committed obligation.

Filing for nomination was Jasper A. Johnson of Tekamah as director of the Burt County Public Power District

NICK ADAMS

Adams Dead Of Overdose Of Sedative

Beverly Hills, Calif. (UPI) —Nick Adams, peppery star of "The Rebel" and "Saints and Sinners" television series, is dead of an overdose of a sedative.

The body of the actor was found Wednesday night slumped against an unmade bed in his secluded Coldwater Canyon home where there was a "for sale" sign on the lawn.

An autopsy disclosed Thursday that Adams, 36, died of "paralydehyde intoxication," but coroner's deputies said further investigation would be necessary to determine whether Adams took his life purposedly or died accidentally.

Paraldehyde is a liquid sedative used for a number of reasons and sometimes prescribed for alcoholics to prevent withdrawal symptoms.

A source close to the actor said he had been drinking heavily recently because he was despondent over troubles with his estranged wife, actress Carol Nugent.

Adams gained his greatest fame as the tough-talking do-gooder in a Western television series, "The Rebel," and in a contemporary TV series, "Saints and Sinners," in which he played a reporter.

U.S. Unworried By Red Fleet Off Korea

Washington (UPI)—Defense officials were unconcerned Thursday about the appearance of a Soviet fleet in the Sea of Japan — obviously a response to the U.S. naval buildup here following North Korea's seizure of he electronics intelligence ship Pueblo.

At last report, informed sources said, the Soviet fleet totaled about 14 ships, including a guided missile cruiser, destroyers, destroyer escorts, oilers and one or more intelligence ships.

It could not be determined immediately just how long the Russian vessels had been in the waters that separate Japan from Korea.

Showing Flag

Sources said the Russians apparently meant to show the flag rather than provide a watch on Wonsan, where the Pueblo was taken after its capture Jan. 23. They noted that two Soviet spy ships in the area were adequate to keep the Wonsan area under surveillance.

Meanwhile, Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, reiterated that the U.S. intelligence ship was seized on the high seas and rejected hints that it might have strayed into North Korean territorial waters before it was captured Jan. 23.

A White House spokesman said Thursday more talks between the United States and North Korea aimed at freeing the 82-man Pueblo and recovering the body of one dead crewman were expected to resume soon at Panmunjom.

The Russian fleet, sources said, probably came from Vladivostok, a major port on the Sea of Japan north of Korea, where the Russians maintain a naval base.

Two Groups

The fleet was deployed in two groups, sources said, one to the north and one to the south of the main concentration of U.S. ships in the area. Most of the U.S. ships were located well out in the sea off the South Korean coast.

It is not unusual for Soviet navy ships to maneuver in the Sea of Japan, but the Pentagon's impression was that their presence there now was a "show-the-flag" response to the American show of force following the Pueblo seizure. Nevertheless, officials saw no danger of a U.S.-Soviet naval confrontation.

At one time, the U.S. naval force there included three aircraft carriers and an undetermined number of cruisers and destroyers. Since then, however, the carrier Enterprise has left the area.

North Korean Speaks Of War 'At Any Moment'

Tokyo (AP) — North Korean Premier Kim Il-sung was quoted Thursday as saying recent developments show a war may break out "at any moment" in Korea and ordered the army and the people to strengthen combat preparations.

The offiicial North Korean Central News Agency said Kim also referred to the Pueblo incident and warned that if the United States continues to try to solve it by means of threat and blackmail, it will get nothing.

Negro Killed, 50 Hurt In Gunfire At College

Orangeburg, S.C. (AP) — A Negro student was killed and an estimated 50 other persons were wounded Thursday night in a major outbreak of gunfire on the campus of South Carolina State College.

Police said Cleveland Sellers, a field coordinator for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), was among those wounded. Sellers, 24, was hit under the left arm.

At least one law enforcement officer was wounded. He was identified as State Highway Patrolman D. J. Shealy. He was struck in the head by a bullet.

The dead student was identified as Sam Hall.

Grass Set Afire

Orangeburg police said the shooting erupted after students set fire to grass on the campus. The fire occurred on a grassy slope that borders the campus alongside U.S. 601.

Associated Press photographer Dozier Mobley, who witnessed the gunfire, said a group of 50 to 75 Negroes standing on the campus at the crest of the slope opened fire as city firemen and police moved in to put out the blaze.

Mobley said police and National Guardsmen stationed across the highway charged up the embankment after the firing began. One of their number was hit as he climbed the slope.

Several students fell as the officers opened fire, Mobley said. During the next hour, ambulances entered and left the campus as the wounded were taken to hospitals.

Fourth Night

It was the fourth straight night of violence in Orangeburg, triggered Monday night when the operator of a bowling establishment refused to admit Negroes. Prior to Thursday night's incident, 13 persons had been injured, and rioting had damaged several stores in the downtown area.

Student leaders, who had submitted a list of seven grievances to the Orangeburg City Council, staged a "prayer-in" during the early evening, and later held a meeting in a ball park near the campus.

Officers said these meetings went off without trouble.

Schwartzkopf Says Chances Of Keeping Job Corps Slim

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Thursday that the outlook is dismal for a reversal of the order closing Lincoln Job Corps Center.

After returning from Washington after talks with federal officials concerning the closure, Schwartzkopf said, "It looks like we have lost the Job Corps.

"It's a real disappointment."

The mayor, Lincoln center officials and Nebraska congressmen bid for a reconsideration and reversal Tuesday, but were rebuffed by the national Job Corps office.

Follow-up efforts failed Wednesday.

"We will now move ahead on getting together a redevelopment team comprised of a cross-section of citizens of the community," the mayor said.

The team will seek other uses for the 500-acre Job Corps campus at Lincoln Air Park.

The Office of Economic Opportunity, however, says it intends to retain control of the property until the end of fiscal 1969.

Californians Plan To Visit Lincoln Job Corps Friday

A Los Angeles authority on job placement and representatives of the 800,000-student Los Angeles school system will visit the Lincoln Men's Job Corps Training Center Friday to inspect the training technique developed by Northern Systems Co.

Heading the group will be C. Chad McClellan, president of the Management Council for Merit Employment, Training & Research of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, former president of the Chamber and a former assistant secretary of commerce under President Eisenhower.

He will be accompanied by Dr. Julian Nava, first Mexican-American to be elected to the Los Angeles Board of Education, and the Rev. James Jones, first Negro elected to the board.

Also participating as representatives of the Los Angeles school superintendent will be Dr. William Johnston, assistant superintendent in charge of adult education, and Arthur Kelly, associate superintendent for junior and senior high schools.

The Lincoln Job Corps has been ordered closed and some trainees already have been transferred out.

Bill In Senate Seeks To Outlaw Master Car Keys

Washington (UPI) — A bill to outlaw "jiggle" master keys which make car stealing easy was introduced Thursday by chairman Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., of the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee.

Dodd said the keys, which fit ignitions on most makes of autos, are advertised chiefly in "girlie" magazines aimed at youngsters. The ads are "worded to appeal to youngsters and others with thrill anl larceny on their minds," he said.

The proposed legislation would make the advertising, mailing or interstate shipping of the keys a felony punishable by five years in prison or $2,000 fine, or both.

President Johnson proposed the legislation in his message to Congress on efforts to try to curb the rising crime rate.

U.S. Warns Bonn To Steer Clear Of Berlin Crisis

Bonn, Germany (AP) — The United States has warned Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's government to avoid anything in its contacts with the Soviet Union that could lead to a new Berliin crisis, a qualified West German source said Thursday.

High U.S. officials, including Secretary of State Dean Rusk, have made this point repeatedly in recent contacts with West German officials, the source said.

Senator Predicts Nuclear-Powered Artificial Heart

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, an acknowledged congressional expert on atomic energy, said Thursday it might be possible to develop an implantable, nuclear-powered artificial heart within five years.

The New Mexico Democrat said this in reporting he would work to double the Johnson administration's request for $500,000 for work on an artificial heart powered by radioactive material.

Mid-Florida S. Georgia, Have Snow

By The Associated Press

Snow fell in such unlikely places as central Florida and south Georgia Thursday, prompting the Weather Bureau to caution motorists to keep their eyes on the road and not the scenery.

Although the weather was normal for most of the South, snow flurries fell in Lakeland and Orlando, Fla., and across south Georgia extending to the coast.

The 3.5 inches at Savannah was the heaviest there since the Weather Bureau began keeping records in the 1870s. There were reports of accumulations of four inches at Savannah Beach and other coastal areas.

Schools at Savannah were closed, and the Weather Bureau warned motorists in southeast Georgia:

"Not only are traveling conditions dangerous, but with the rarity of snow in this area, people have a tendency to admire the scenery and become distracted from the business of driving."

In Atlanta, mass confusion resulted from a thin layer of ice and an accumulation of about two inches of snow. Traffic was snarled throughout the city.

Light snow fell in Lakeland, Leesburg, Sanford, Orlando and other points in central Florida. With it came subfreezing weather that could cause millions of dollars damage to the state's citrus and vegetable crops.

The temperature at Miami Beach dropped to 51 degrees.

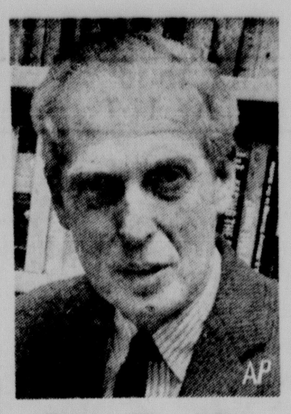

Snow was reported in other south Georgia towns—three inches at Claxton, one-fourth of an inch at Jesup, enough to cover small patches at Brunswick and some flurries at Valdosta.

David G. Nes, former deputy chief of the U.S. mission in Cairo, says political timidity in Washington kept the United States from taking steps that might have prevented the Israeli-Arab war last June. Nes, 51, has resigned from the Foreign Service.

Political Clinic To Be Keynoted By Iowa Official

William Robinson, associate executive secretary of the Iowa State Education Association, will keynote a political clinic here Saturday sponsored by the Lincoln Education Association.

Some 100 persons are expected to attend the all-day session at the Black Coach Supper Club, according to LEA Executive Secretary Ely Feistner.

Participants will discuss such topics as how can state laws and personnel policies free teachers for participation in politics and what relationship exists between political activity, teacher image and classroom performance.

Space Offers 'Huge Economic Benefits'

© New York Times Service

Washington — A National Academy of Sciences study group reported Thursday that space offered "enormous" economic benefits to society.

The group found that potential benefits from practical space applications "appear to be large, larger in fact than most of the participants in the study anticipated and much larger than the cost of achieving those benefits."

The scientists urged "an extensive and coherent" program to reap these benefits, and said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration should double the $100 million it now spends to develop space applications technology.

"The space program has broken the plausibility barrier," the report said.

In weather forecasting alone, the scientists said, "the committee is convinced that aggregate benefits to the U.S. will be very large, in the range of $1 billion a year."

A panel on geology "took a banker's approach" in assessing benefits, the report said.

"They assumed, as appears reasonable, that space imagery would enable geologists to speed up, by a few per cent, the rate at which mineral resources could be found," it went on.

Udall Rules Water Purity Must Stay Up

© New York Times Service

Washington — Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall ruled Thursday that the water quality of interstate and coastal waters that is higher than standards required by law may not be lowered except under special conditions.

"I have decided," he told a news conference, "that no standards will be approved from here on that do not contain a satisfactory antidegradation provision."

His decision ended a dispute that began months ago among officials of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration.

Some water officials had contended that the requirement to maintain existing water quality in streams, lakes and other sourcees of water above standards set by the states would inhibit economic development. They argued that needed industrial plants and other businesses would not be constructed.

British Merger Might Form 4th Largest Bank In World

© New York Times Service

London — A merger that would produce the fourth largest bank in the world was announced Thursday to a startled London financial community.

Barclays Bank and Lloyds Bank proposed to combine, and then to take on Martins Bank. Together they would have assets of $3.5 billion.

The government, with the consent of the banks, immediately referred the merger plan to the Monopolies Commission. The commission must decide within six months whether the plan is in the public interest.

Speculation here Thursday night was that the huge merger would be approved, since it comes during a powerful trend toward larger combinations in British industry and finance.

Two weeks ago the Westminster Bank and the National Provincial announced a merger proposal. So far the government has not referred this proposed merger to the Monopolies Commission, and the mechanics of consummating the marriage are going ahead.

Westminster and National Provincial were the bottom two of the traditional "big five" in British banking. Barclays has been first and Lloyds third. The Midland Bank has been second.

The four largest banks in the world now are all American. According to figures here, they rank as follows:

Bank of America—$18.5 billion.

Chase Manhattan—$16 billion.

First National City—$15 billion.

Manufacturers Hanover Trust—$7.8 billion.

The promoters of Thursday's merger indicated that a major object of the plan was to create a British bank strong enough to face the increasingly tough international competition.

F106 To Be Updated As No. 1 Interceptor

Washington (UPI) — Overruling the Air Force, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara bypassed one of America's most advanced planes in favor of a 10-year-old aircraft for U.S. defense against manned bombers in the mid-1970s.

McNamara's reasons for picking the F106 Delta Dart —which will be modified and carry new armament — over the YF12 were spelled out in recent testimony to Congress. His decision was based on a complex combination of costs and assessment of various possible threats.

Selection of a new interceptor was part of a planned $12 billion overhaul of U.S. air defenses.

The F106 already is part of the interceptor force. The first one flew in 1956 and production ended in 1960.

About 300 of the planes, reported to have a speed of 1,400 miles an hour, range in excess of 1,500 miles and a ceiling of more than 50,000 feet, still are in service.

The rejected YF12 which the Air Force wanted as its No. 1 interceptor is reported to fly three times the speed of sound —more than 2,000 miles an hour — with a ceiling of more than 80,000 feet and a range of about 2,000 miles.

Mid-Nebraska Action Group Gets $29,469

Kearney (AP) — A grant of $29,469 for the Mid-Nebraska Community Action, Inc., has been approved by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Mid-Nebraska Community Action is the anti-poverty agency for Buffalo, Dawson, Phelps, Harlan, Franklin, Gosper and Kearney Counties.

Director Margaret McMullen of Kearney said the money will fund the agency for the next 12 months and provide for a community organization program.

Cycle Driver, 19, Hospitalized After 13th, South Crash

A 19-year-old Lincolnite was hospitalized early Thursday afternoon after suffering minor injuries in a car-motorcycle accident at 13th and South Sts., according to police.

Authorities said David A. Kepler of 2810 S. 42nd was in good condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Police said Kepler's eastbound motorcycle collided with a westbound car on South St. driven by Mrs. Marie R. Helget, 51, of Alexandria.

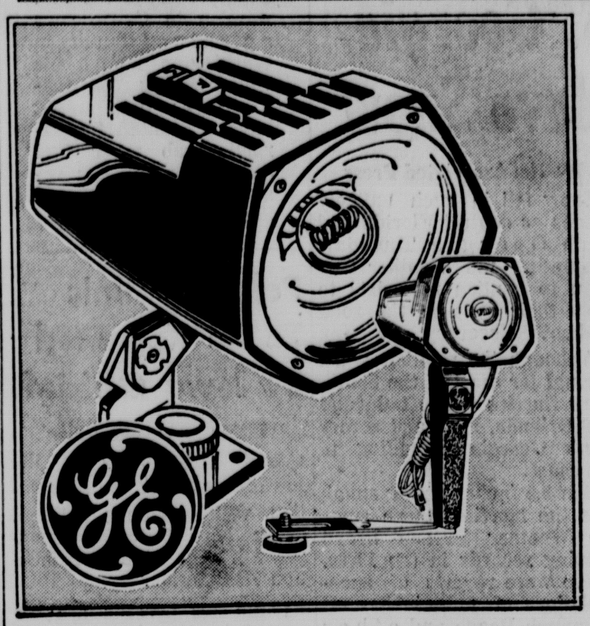

Mrs. Helget was turning left onto 13th St. at the time of the mishap, police said.

Romney Launching State Bid Saturday

Gov. George Romney will launch his bid for Nebraska's Republican presidential primary nod Saturday with appearances in Omaha and Fremont.

Romney is squeezing the Nebraska trip in between primary campaign forays into New Hampshire and Wisconsin.

Former Vice President Richard Nixon has already opened his Nebraska campaign—with a series of Omaha appearances last Dec. 15.

Romney will arrive at Eppley Airport at 11:15 a.m., then hold a news conference at the terminal.

At 1:30 p.m., the Michigan governor will journey to Boys Town for an hour's visit.

Formal opening of Romney's first "home headquarters" in Nebraska is scheduled for 2:45 p.m., at the Dean Baxter home at 10406 Oak in Omaha.

At 3:30 p.m., the governor will tape a news conference interview at WOW-TV. He will then retire to the Blackstone Hotel to prepare for an evening address.

Romney is scheduled to address the Junior Chamber of Commerce state convention at the Fremont civic auditorium at 8:30 p.m. He will leave Omaha by air for Detroit following the speech.

Omaha City Councilman Arthur Bradley, Romney's Nebraska chairman, said his organization hopes to establish "a couple of thousand" Romney home headquarters in Nebraska prior to the May 14 primary election.

The home headquarters technique is the foundation of Romney's New Hampshire campaign.

Workmen Fell Landmark Ash On NU Campus

A University of Nebraska landmark was felled Thursday when workmen cut down a giant ash tree just north of 11th and R Sts. near Architectural Hall.

The university said the tree was believed planted by the class of 1906, which also donated a semicircular bench at the base of the ash.

The school said the tree had become a safety hazard because of a diseased upper trunk. It said the stump would remain intact and be used for a table.

Clapp Says Rural Power Systems Will Need $8 Billion Over 15 Years

Washington (AP)—An official of the Rural Electrification Administration predicts rural electric systems financed by the government will require $8 billion in new capital in the next 15 years.

Norman M. Clapp, administrator of the REA, said in a report to Congress the seeds of these systems will grow rapidly as economic opportunities develop and bring jobs for the rural unemployed and underemployed.

Clapp says growth needs of rural power systems depending on low-cost government loans are running at an annual rate of $353 million. But he said this soon will increase to $700 million.

"The present facts and future expectations have produced a growing concern over the urgent need for developing a practical source of financing from the private money market to supplement available REA loan funds," Clapp said.

Congress declined to agree last year on a proposed bank for rural power cooperatives. The bank would have had authority to tap private money markets for loan funds.

The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association expressed concern in its latest news letter that the federal Bureau of the Budget may move to cut out REA loans for future building of power generating and transmission systems. Federal loans presumably would be limited for use in distributing power to rural consumers.

Board Approves City, Consumers Service Charge

The Nebraska Power Review Board has approved a retail service area modification between Consumers Public Power District and the City of Scottsbluff.

Action was taken by the board at a meeting in Omaha.

Approval paves the way for completion of the CPPD-Scottsbluff retail electric service agreement announced earlier this month.

Johnson--U.S. Backing Britain

Washington (AP) — President Johnson conferred at length Thursday with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and then told him "the American people are backing Britain" in its time of many trials.

In a long, laudatory toast at a state dinner, Johnson said to his guest:

"I have enormous confidence, Mr. Prime Minister, in the character of my own people, in their ability to understand and master trial. I am proud to place equal faith in your people, in their characteristic courage and fortitude.

U.S. 'Backing Britain'

"I say with them and to them, using the slogan of the moment: The American people are backing Britain."

This strong statement of support came at a time of British troubles — financial and political, and a time of impending withdrawal from an old sphere of influence in the Far East.

Johnson conceded these are difficult times for Britain and the United States and they still have family differences. But, he said, "Britain means as much to us as ever," the two nations are as close as ever and their peoples are as determined as ever to master the trials of the moment and move on to the triumphs of the future.

Ranged The World

Johnson said in his toast that he and Wilson ranged the world in long talks Thursday, reviewing their large responsibilities, drawing on their experience, exchanging insights, and giving and getting much of value.

He did not go from those generalities to specifics.

It was reported that in their talks Wilson sought to allay American concern over the impact of Britain's pending withdrawal of military forces from areas east of Suez.

Wilson, informants said, devoted considerable part of his four-hour conference with Johnson to the problem he created when he announced Jan. 16 the closing of British bases in Singapore and in the Persian Gulf by the end of 1971.

American sources said before Wilson's arrival that the President was anxious to discuss the British decision and to seek ways to cushion its impact on western defenses. Wilson, on the other hand, was equally anxious to explain to Johnson why this pullout is necessary in view of his country's unfavorable balance-of-payments situation, diplomatic informants said.

Wilson is understood to have argued that during the four years before completion of the withdrawal a number of things could happen to change the view that the bases are necessary to maintain peace in the affected areas.

The sources declined to say how Johnson reacted to Wilson's argument. Presently the United States does not want, and probably could not accept, any new commitments and has no plans to move in when the British withdraw.

Opera Star Stands By Song Choices

Washington (AP)—A semi-flap involving diplomacy, international politics and Britain's prime minister ended Thursday with Metropolitan Opera star Robert Merrill standing by his original selections for a black-tie dinner at the White House.

Merrill provided the entertainment following a dinner at which President and Mrs. Johnson were hosts to Prime Minister and Mrs. Harold Wilson.

One of the selections was "I Got Plenty O' Nuttin'," Another was "On the Road to Mandalay," with its line about: "Come ye back ye British soldier, come ye back to Mandalay" and another about "Ship me somewhere east of Suez."

Since some people were inclined to think the songs might have a bit of application to Britain's financial difficulties and decision to pull out of the Far East, there was an expectation some changes might be made.

But the only change was an addition to the original selections, another Gershwin number: "It Ain't Necessarily So."

NU Artists Decorate Union

The lounge of the University of Nebraska student union quit looking pretty a long time ago.

So students decided that it was time to paint the construction-torn room which now serves as lounge, lobby and newstand.

The canvas is a huge sheet of temporary wallboard running the full length of the lounge where the west windows used to be.

The would be Rembrandts are being given free reign by Carol E. Graham's union contemporary arts committee. The only restrictions are that students use their own supplies and "no words allowed."

"It's mostly for fun," Miss Graham said. Her committee also sponsors art exhibits, an art sale, on art lending library and photography contest.

Wallace's Third Party Move Leaves Him In 'Limbo' Here

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's decision to run on a third party ticket for president places his candidacy "in limbo" as regards to the Nebraska primary, Secretary of State Frank Marsh said Thursday.

Marsh said the Nebraska primary law recognizes only Democratic and Republican party candidates, unless a third party is formally organized in the state.

Wallace could establish a third party by securing 750 valid voter signatures backing the organization before Feb. 2?. A state convention would have to be held by March 5.

Wallace has said he expects his name to be on the Nebraska ballot, which is receiving national attention because of its free-for-all feature.

Under Nebraska law, the secretary of state must select nationally advocated or recognized candidates for the May 14 primary ballot. Lesser-known aspirants can enter the race by petition.

Marsh said he will announce his choices at a 10:30 a.m. news conference Wednesday. He has indicated Ronald Reagan, Nelson Rockefeller. George Romney and Richard Nixon will be tapped for the Republican side, and Eugene McCarthy and President Johnson for the Democratic side.

No decision has been made on former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen, who is an announced Republican candidate for the White House.

Marsh said he has considered placing Wallace on the Democratic ballot but the former Alabama governor's insistance on running as a third party candidate creates a problem.

"We can only recognize a third party for the presidential primary ballot if that party is formally organized in this state," he said. "So far, Mr. Wallace has not done that. Thus his candidacy is sort of in limbo."

Parliament Dissolved

Singapore (AP) — The Singapore parliament was formally dissolved to make way for the first general elections since this island became an independent republic two years ago.

Election Action Ruled Out For LAP Staff Members

Lincoln Action Program staff members will no longer be permitted to transport voters to the polls on election day as a part of their jobs, LAP director Art May announced Thursday.

According to 1967 congressional amendments to the Economic Opportunity Act, employes of EOA funded anti-poverty programs may not engage in voter registration drives nor provide voters or prospective voters transportation to the polls.

Although the Capital City's community action agency had never carried on formal voter registration drives, it had attempted to provide transportation to low income people on previous election days, May pointed out.

The increased restrictions on political activity do not limit persons outside of their working time, he added.

The Lincoln director indicated that employes such as neighborhood aides probably would still be able to assist low income groups plan their own transportation to the polls.

Except for the Green amendment, which gave local government bodies program responsibility, most of the other changes in the Economic Opportunity law do not apply to the Lincoln agency, May said.

The new provisions restrict salaries of any staff members to $15,000 annually and limit the Legal Services Society to handling only civil cases except with the approval of the OEO regional office.

Guidelines for possible take-over of community action programs by local governmental bodies, as provided by the Green amendment, are being issued by OEO sometime next week it has been reported.

OEO will ask for an answer on the take-over intentions by March 15.

The amendment authorizes, but does not require, local elected officials to take control of community action agencies that are financed mainly with federal anti-poverty money.

Team Investigates NU As Nuclear Lab Site

Atomic Energy Commission engineers met here Thursday with state and University of Nebraska officials to survey possible locations for a medium-scale nuclear laboratory on the East Campus.

Nebraska is one of several states that has submitted an application for the research facility to study industrial uses of atomic energy, especially in food irradiation.

Federal funds are available for the project but must be matched by the states seeking the laboratory.

"We explored the whole pattern of work that would be involved and there is no question the project is feasible," said Dr. John Cusak of the Brookhaven National Laboratories in Long Island, N.Y.

Cusak indicated during the visit that "you have a leg up on everybody else because you are a heavy food-producing state."

He and an aide, Dr. Donald Hausvaugh, will submit a report on their findings about site locations, construction costs and staffing requirements to the Atomic Energy Commission.

The team of two was "not here to evaluate" the city or the university as a site but to help develop concepts on which a design could be based they said.

Woman Jailed, Man Fined For Assault, Battery

Lancaster District Judge Herbert Ronin Thursday sentenced a Lincoln woman to 60 days in jail and fined a man $75 in connection with the beating last Nov. 21 of Oscar J. Hubbard.

Virginia Foster, 24, of 852 No. 25th, and Floyd Ballard, 78, of 883 No. 22nd, pleaded guilty Jan. 23 to amended charges of assault and battery.

Both had originally been charged with felony offenses of assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury.

According to Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas, the charges were amended because Hubbard refused to testify.

NU Prof To Speak

Professor Linus Burr Smith from the University of Nebraska department of architecture will be the guest speaker at a general membership meeting of the Home Builders Association of Lincoln (HBAL) at 6:30 p.m. Monday at East Hills Supper Club.

British Ready To Drop Soviet Friendship Pact

London (AP)—A year-old British-Russian project for a friendship treaty was reported by British diplomats Thursday night as all but collapsed.

Informants blamed what they said was an intensifying Soviet campaign to undermine the purposes and future of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The 20-year defense alliance is due for renewal in 1969.

Russia's hostility toward NATO, the British sources said, ran through the draft of the projected treaty handed last month by Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson in Moscow.

One diplomat said: "Russia's version of the treaty of friendship and cooperation would have engaged Britain in a series of new obligations cutting clean across its existing commitments to NATO and to its European allies.

"It's a collection of old-style polemical views on a variety of European and wider international issues and clearly is quite unacceptable to us."

In theory, the British and Soviet governments could resume active efforts in the next few months or years to reconcile their rival treaty drafts. But British officials do not think this likely.

Farm Home Burns Down

Ellis (UPI) — A late afternoon fire Thursday destroyed the two-story farm home of Louis Shipman, retired, who lived alone in the buildings four miles west of here in Jefferson County.

Shipman said he had been burning some trash in his back yard and later thought he had put the fire out.

When he returned the fire had erupted and spread to a cobshed located about 10 feet from the house. The rural fire department from Diller and neighbors were called.

When firemen arrived the blaze had spread to the house and was too far along to save the building, but neighbors had saved his belongings from the building.

Gold Stock Drops By $100 Million

New York (AP) — The nation's monetary gold stock dropped $100 million last week to its lowest point in almost 31 years, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York said Thursday.

The drop puts the gold stock at $11.884 billion, lowest since $11.782 billion on April 28, 1937.

Lincolnite Victim Of Hit-And-Run

A 23-year-old Lincoln man suffered minor head injuries when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver at 13th and G Thursday afternoon, police said.

Police said Jerry Bigham, 3045 N. 52nd, was struck by the car while he was crossing the intersection at 13th and G.

The driver sped away from the accident, but police officials said that they were able to obtain a description of the car from witnesses.

Bigham was taken to Bryan Memorial Hospital where authorities said he was treated and released.

Eight Killed By Explosions In Meat Plant

Chicago (UPI)—The toll of explosions that reduced a meatpacking plant to tangled rubble rose to eight Thursday. Two men who suffered skull fractures died in a hospital and the body of the company president was pulled from the debris.

Twenty-three of 74 persons injured in the chain of blasts Wednesday night were being treated in hospitals. Three of the dead and 15 of the injured were firemen.

Fire Commissioner Robert J. Quinn, haggard after a sleepless night, said all persons known to have been in the disaster area had been accounted for and no one was believed still buried in the mass of mortar, lumber and twisted girders.

Quinn said the chain of explosions was started by a fire which broke out in a gasoline tank truck in an alley behind Mickleberry's Food Products Co. plant on Chicago's South Side.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

The Swiss trains are like the miniature electric trains you got for Christmas.

The stationmaster in his blue pillbox cap raises a red and white target. The train moves smoothly. And you can set your watch by the first turn of the wheels. Just look at the departure time on the timetable.

Swiss trains and Swiss clocks are exact.

They say here: "Time is the art of the Swiss."

☆ ☆ ☆

The northern side of St. Gotthard pass is Swiss-German. The "Gasthaus" inns you see from the train window are like Black Forest log cabins. The houses are laced with scrollwork. The street signs are in German. The land is spiked with pines.

The train rushes into the dark tunnel.

And when you come out on the other side, you are in Swiss-Italian lake country.

The inns are now labeled "Albergo." They are plastered in Mediterranean pastels. Pink, green, blue and chocolate.

The sun is warmer. If you go into the station restaurant, the smell is rich as pizza. And probably is.

☆ ☆ ☆

Lugano is a summer town by the marine-blue Lago di Lugano. In the winter, the hills are thick with snow. And down in the little village, only a couple of hotels are open.

The blocks of shops selling Swiss watches are shuttered for the winter.

Only two of the many restaurants are open.

The swan boats that float on the lake in the summer sun are put away.

The white lake boats that sail each summer evening, neon-lighted, gay with music, are buttoned up for the winter.

And the lake towns are under snow. The towns with names like Italian songs: Ponte Tresa Porlezza, Paradiso and Campione.

☆ ☆ ☆

Lugano is on the rail line to Milan. It is a pleasant stopover in the winter. The lake is gun metal under the snow-filled sky. The hills are white and silent.

I have been here in summer, and there really are too many people.

In August, the Swiss watchmakers all take their vacations. In the summer I was here last, I think they all came to Lugano. (Switzerland has 63,262 watchmakers.)

☆ ☆ ☆

The Lugano food is splendid. It has the flavor of Italy—as has the language, though the Lugano people claim it is really native Swiss.

Dinners are rich with pasta. Assorted sauces can be had on veal scallops. If you don't ask for Swiss wines, they will serve you Chianti. The coffee is always espresso.

It is not particularly popular with Americans. The man from the Swiss tourist office said sadly: "Only eight per cent of our visitors come from America."

☆ ☆ ☆

He said the National Tourist Office in Zurich had looked into the problem. They thought the Lugano Swiss were not Swiss-looking enough to attract Americans.

He said: "They said, 'Americans expect the Swiss to wear short pants costumes and milk cows and to yodel.'"

He said: "The local people said, 'We don't wear those kind of costumes. That is a costume worn by Swiss-Germans who drink beer and eat sausage.'

"They said, 'We don't raise cows around here. And it is against the nature of a Swiss-Italian to yodel.'"

☆ ☆ ☆

The lake country borders on Italy — Lugano is a finger of land pushed into the north of Italy.

During the war, Switzerland was neutral. But Italian partisans used to row across the lake and attack German garrisons and then row back again.

When you get on the train for Milan, you hardly have time to get your ticket out before you have crossed into Italy.

Deadline Told On Applications For Police Class

Col. James E. Kruger, chief of the Nebraska State Patrol, announced Thursday that applications will be received to Feb. 20 for participation in a two-week "supervision of police personnel" course to begin March 4 at the patrol training center at the former Lincoln Air Force Base.

The training will be given by representatives of the field division of the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

As a result of a $16,000 grant from the federal highway safety program, there will be no tuition, subsistence, lodging or student material cost to those participating in the session or in a one-week command conference open to non-patrol police administrators beginning March 25.

Going to move soon? Be sure to notify the Circulation Department, giving both your old and new address.

MISS MARY LYNN DURRIE

Of particular interest to campus and town this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Durrie of the engagement of their daughter, Mary Lynn, to Richard Reiser, son of Mrs. Kinney Reiser and the late Mr. Reiser.

The wedding is planned for Saturday Aug. 24.

Miss Durrie is a junior in education at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Phi sorority of which she is serving as vice president.

Mr. Reiser is a senior in the College of Business Administration at the University of Nebraska, and his fraternity is Kappa Sigma.

THE TALK AROUND THE TOWN

Once in a very great while there is a beautiful reason—and a charming one—for a party. There is just such a party on Tuesday evening, Feb. 20. The Patriarchs will have a dinner which, in itself, is not unusual, but the date of the February dinner was arranged to honor a very gracious lady. She is Mrs. W. H. Ferguson who, on Feb. 20, will be celebrating her 100th birthday anniversary not only with many of her old friends, but also with younger members of Patriarchs who will greet the honoree with deepest admiration and respect.

The dinner will be held at the University Club.

* * *

Events do have their beginnings in surprising ways. For instance, one evening not too long ago four couples were talking and the topic of the conversation had mainly to do with clubs, and how monotonous it was to do the same thing over and over again.

Right then and there a new club was born—not a dancing club, not a bridge club—just a 'party' club.

The difference between a party club and a dancing or bridge club, we are told, is the entertainment. One affair might be a dinner dance, another a bridge party—and on and on went the possibilities.

The initial meeting of the party club will be on Saturday evening, Feb. 17, at the Hillcrest Country Club. There will be dinner and dancing, and in between there will be a meeting of the 30 couples who will decide upon a name, probably elect officers, and almost for certain they will add to the membership.

In charge of the arrangements for the very first meeting of the new club are Mr. and Mrs. G. Edwin Pearce, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wells and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Metzger.

* * *

With Valentine's Day in the offing it is not surprising that the Merrimyx Dancing Club is having 'Your Heart's Desire' party on Saturday evening at Hotel Cornhusker. We hear that the affair is to be a costume party, and arranging all of the details is a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alden, chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. Bart Bartzat, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Watson and Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Givens.

* * *

It may be the thought that spring is just around the corner that is inspiring various and sundry towards festive affairs which, at this moment, are not quite complete enough to cast a shadow on the horizon, then appearing in full view one of these days—and we'll tell you about them then.

We Hear That

Mr. and Mrs. John Endorf of Western announce the arrival of a son, Jeffrey Alan, on Friday, Jan. 26. Mrs. Endorf is the former Mary Amend, daughter of John Amend of Lincoln—and a former coed at the University of Nebraska. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Endorf of Western.

Fun News In Suburbia

Since University of Nebraska officials have reported that Saturday evening's clash between the Kansas State Jayhawks and the Cornhuskers has been sold out, it goes without saying that there will be quite a number of basketball fans migrating into Lincoln this weekend, their purpose, of course, is to cheer Big Red on to another victory. And those who were not fortunate enough to get tickets will undoubtedly swell the ranks of stay-at-home boosters who choose to follow the team by way of the radio. So, if spirit has anything to do with winning basketball games, the Huskers will certainly enter the game with a decided advantage!

Perhaps next week we will have news of some fans who came to town for the game, but right now we'd like to mention some guests who were in Lincoln last week to visit their son-in-law and daughter. The guests that we are referring to were Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kubicek of Milligan, who spent Sunday afternoon visiting with Bethany Park Heights residents Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hinrichs and children, Amy Lynn and Lori Ann.

Mad Hatters give un-birthday parties, but little girls who are about to mark their seventh anniversary always give real birthday parties. And celebrating such an important event recently was Miss Lynne Brehm who, with the help of her mother, Mrs. Robert Brehm, entertained feminine friends. Invited guests were Connie Buss, Amy Satterfield, Shereen Heiser, Rhonda Jelinek, Danielle Damonde, Jana Hanshaw, Sandy Snider and Kelly Els.

In Sunnyside Acres, the newest addition to the John T. Brennan home has a long wait before her first birthday arrives. Miss Patricia Marie Brennan is the young lady's name and she claims Tuesday, Jan. 30, as her anniversary.

Included in Patricia's family circle are her parents, of course, and a brother Ronnie, who is six-years-old; and grandmothers, Mrs. Ruth Brennan of St. Cloud, Minn., and Mrs. Opal Stoeken of Menomoney, Wis. But at the moment Patricia is also getting to know a distant cousin, Terry Brennan of Ft. Dodge, Iowa, who is currently visiting the Brennan family.

Another new arrival who is quite the center of attention in the Wedgewood home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Berg, is Master Kevin Eric Berg who made his debut on February 2 at Bryan Memorial Hospital. Of course one of Kevin's most ardent admirers is his brother, Scott Alan, who is three and a half years old and who, as his mother tells us, is very anxious to lend a helping hand with the new member of the family.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Moore of Holton, Kan., and Mr. and Mrs. Axel Berg of Minneapolis, Minn. We understand that Mrs. Moore has been visiting in Lincoln to assist her daughter and also to become acquainted with young Kevin.

Busy Day For CFG

February 10th will be a busy day for Camp Fire Girls in Lincoln.

Members of Horizon Club, senior division of the Lincoln Council of Camp Fire Girls are really getting into the swing of things in their latest citywide service project. They are "swinging" paint brushes this time. They will be painting city park picnic tables and benches in the basement of the Antelope Park Pavilion from 8 o'clock until 5 o'clock on Saturday. So this spring, some of our picnic tables will be sporting a new coat of paint and add to the beauty and cleanliness of our city parks.

Planning Session

The Lincoln Mrs. Jaycees won't be in Lincoln this weekend. They will be in Fremont, as will the Jaycees, where the winter convention of the organizations will be held today, tomorrow and Sunday. The meeting, to be attended by all of the chapters is a planning session for the entire state.

The Mrs. Jaycees will be home in time for the regular meeting on Wednesday evening when the outstanding Mrs. Jaycee award will be presented.

Abby: don't give in

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Your advice is needed badly. I am a 15-year-old girl. My best friend (I'll call her Tammy) is also 15, and she's about three months pregnant. Tammy isn't married and she doesn't have one single friend but me.

The boy who got her pregnant took off, and she doesn't even know where he is now. She says she doesn't care, as he showed his true colors by running away, and she is better off forgetting him. I agree with her.

Abby, if Tammy's folks find out they will kill her. I can't ask my mother to help her. She wouldn't let me even speak to Tammy if she knew about this.

Tammy keeps talking about running away or killing herself. I can't take a chance on getting a letter at my house and neither can Tammy. Someone might get suspicious and open it, so will you please tell me in your column if there is a home for unwed mothers who would take my friend in? She doesn't have any money. Thank you.

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Find "SALVATION ARMY" in your telephone directory. Listed under it is BOOTH MEMORIAL HOSPITAL. Telephone either number, explain the situation, and they will help you. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Why didn't you advise that girl who was jealous because her boy friend had SHARON tattooed on his chest to have "I LOVE MILLIE MORE THAN SHARON" tattooed over it. That's what I did.

WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I figured the guy had already had enough needling.

They Really ARE The 'Dancing Dames

We haven't the foggiest notion as to whether or not they breakfast on Kellogg's K — or Wheaties — or Rice Crispies — They could be raisin-snitchers for all we know about their eating habits. But we do know about their energy — They have it.

We're talking about the Dancing Dames who don't care a fig about President Johnson's 'fitness' program. They want fun — They have that, too.

The Dancing Dames, you see, is the name of a group of women who go dancing every Thursday evening — sometimes in between Thursdays, also. On Thursday night, however, 36 of them meet for square dancing at the University Place YWCA. They go through their paces like troopers, never miss a beat, and never fail to hear the caller as her voice comes through the microphone. They have taken care of the manless situation, too. Each square of eight dancers requires four men, but that doesn't bother anybody — In each of the squares four of the ladies wear ribbons on their arms to show that they are assuming the role of the male dancer. The ribbons change from arm to arm as the evening goes on just to give everyone a chance to be a girl.

The caller, and she volunteers her services, is Mrs. Agnes Van Camp who tells us that she is in her 70s, and that she has tripped many a light fantastic, square and otherwise. The two oldest members of the group are Mrs. Bertha Stern who is 89, and Mrs. Lilly Long who will be 88 her next birthday.

And we musn't forget the musician for the group—the pianist. She is Mrs. W. C. Harper who would gladly volunteer her services, but the Dancing Dames wouldn't hear to such a proposition —The group felt that a hard-working pianist should be paid. So, each Thursday evening they more or less pass the hat, and if no one has too much money on her person at the time, no one could care less than Mrs. Harper.

Marriage Announced

Announcement is made of the marriage of Carol Lester Henshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul James Lester of Hampton, Va., to Lt. Daniel Ernest Lott, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Edgar Lott of Lincoln, which took place on Sunday, Feb. 4.

The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. J. H. Davis, assistant minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Hampton, and following the service a reception was held at the Fort Monroe' Officers Club.

Lt. Lott and his bride will be in Lincoln later this week, and on Sunday the Rev. and Mrs. Lott will pay courtesy to their son and daughter-in-law when they are a host and hostess at a reception between the hours of 2 o'clock and 5 o'clock at their home.

Garden Club

Members of the Garden Club of Lincoln will meet on Monday, Feb. 12, at the Food and Nutrition building on the East Campus. A 7:45 o'clock program will be presented by Dr. Esther Bennett of the City Parks Department and her topic is "Butterflies in Your Garden."

Bridge

let's test your dummy play

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Three No-trump. North leads the queen of hearts. How would you play the hand?

	♠ A Q J ♥ A K 9 ♦ 7 3 ♣ A K 7 4 3
♠ 9 6 3 ♥ 8 2 ♦ A K 8 6 4 2 ♣ 6 5	N W E S

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Diamonds. North leads the queen of hearts and continues with the jack, South playing the six and then the four. How would you play the hand?

	♠ A K 5 ♥ 3 ♦ A K 10 6 2 ♣ A K 10 4
♠ 9 7 4 3 ♥ K 8 5 2 ♦ Q J 9 ♣ Q J	N W E S

1. You have no sure way of making the contract, but there is a clear-cut percentage play you should adopt.

There are two main lines of play to choose from. One is to win the heart, enter dummy with a diamond, and try a spade finesse. If it wins, you reenter dummy with a diamond and repeat the finesse.

This brings you to nine tricks with a chance of making an overtrick or two, but, considering that for practical purposes South must have the king of spades for you to succeed, you have very little more than a 50% chance of making the contract.

The other method of play is to win the heart, return a diamond, and play low from dummy. If the diamonds are divided 3-2 (a 68% chance) you make at least four no-trump. Obviously, this method of play will win more often in the long run than the spade finesse, and is therefore the preferred line of play.

2. The problem is to avoid a spade loser. The best way of playing the hand is to try for a dummy reversal. Ruff the heart high and cash the J-9 of diamonds.

If both opponents follow suit, ruff the eight of hearts (let's assume the ace does not fall), reenter dummy with a club, and ruff the king of hearts. Now play a club to the queen, cash the queen of diamonds, discarding the five of spades, and the rest of the tricks are yours.

You may learn, after cashing the J-9 of diamonds, that the trumps are divided 4-1, in which case you will be forced to abandon the dummy reversal form of play. Now your only chance is to attempt to cash four rounds of clubs and discard two spades from dummy. If all goes well, this method of play will also succeed.

Golden Gloves Worthwhile

A few years ago while having breakfast with Chet Nelson, sports editor of the Rocky Mountain News and a long-time booster of Golden Gloves in the Denver area, during the National Golden Gloves in Kansas City someone approached our table and asked Chet why he continued to spend so much time working with youngsters in the Golden Gloves program.

"Well, for one thing, it's the only chance some of these kids get to take a decent shower," was his reply.

Nelson was not being disparaging with his remark. In fact, quite the contrary, as he illustrated one of the many small things that youngsters have gotten out of Golden Gloves programs, a program that survived a critical period a few years ago and now is reaching new peaks in popularity.

Improving Human Relations

In no other sport do you get the wide divergence of race, social and economic strata working together that you find in a Golden Gloves boxing gym.

Participants climbing into the ring in this weekend's Southeast District Golden Gloves at the State Fairgrounds will range from a doctor's son through a 27-year-old laborer to high school youngsters.

You can find Whites, Negroes, Indians and Mexicans working with each other in a gym ring or holding a heavy bag for each other and the only thing distinguishing one from the other is the manner in which one throws a left hook better or counter punches better.

Golden Gloves boxing has its detractors, people who run down the sport, pointing to this youngster or that youngster who has gotten into trouble.

But wouldn't that youngster have gotten into trouble anyway. He didn't get into trouble because he was a Golden Gloves fighter. How about the boy, who may have been turned away from trouble because he got a chance for recognition through Golden Gloves.

Anyone who tries to detract from the program doesn't know a youngster named Mike Wilson, has never known Ed or Matt Taber, Stan or Mike Larchick or a host of others.

Wilson, an 18-year-old Pius X senior, is the type of youngster you'd want you boy to be like.

"He's the hardest worker I've ever had," says coach Larry Emery. Wilson hasn't missed more than two workouts since last October and if there is anyone in this city in better physical condition or better mental condition than young Mike I'd like to see him.

Golden Gloves boxing has given youngsters, who would never have had the opportunity for recognition otherwise, that opportunity.

Not Just Off Streets

The idea that most of the fighters entering the ring tonight and Saturday night at the State Fairgrounds just came in off the street that night is as foolish as the thought that you can grow bananas in Havelock.

When you see Wilson, Monte Cady, John Kuebler, or most of the other fighters in the ring this weekend, you'll be seeing the results of tough nightly workouts.

None has been as regular or as diligent as Wilson, but it's been a rare night in the past six weeks that any of the above named fighters has missed a workout.

There has to be a lot of good in any youngster, who will work from 7 to 9 nightly for more than a month just for six to 12 minutes in ring competition this weekend.

One of the saddest moments in sports for this writer has to be when a Golden Gloves boxer, after more than 60 hours in a gym, sees it all end in a six-minute bout with a loss on a decision that could have gone either way.

The marks on the plus side of the Golden Gloves balance sheet far outnumber those on the minus side. And that doesn't even take into consideration the free shower.

USTFF Meet To Feature Top Runners

New York (AP)—The U.S. Track and Field Federation's indoor meet today, which once threatened to be an athlete's nightmare, has turned into a matchmaker's dream.

Jim Ryun, Dave Patrick and Sam Bair in the mile, Tommie Smith and Larry James in the 500, Lee Evans and Vince Matthews in the 600 and Earl McCullouch and Leon Coleman in the hurdles are just some of the duels that figure to highlight the meet.

For a time the meet threatened the eligibility of everyone who ran in it because of the war over control of track and field. A federal panel's report has quieted the controversy, at least as it affects this meet.

The mile race between Ryun, the world-record holder from Kansas, Patrick, sub-four-minute miler, and Bair, fastest of the three this season, has caught the imagination of track fans as few races have lately.

In their only previous meeting, Patrick of Villanova beat Ryun in the 880 at last year's NCAA indoor championships, setting a world indoor record in the process. Patrick lost three races this season before winning at 1,000 yards.

Ryun has had no top-flight competition this season but he is in good shape and, off his record, has to be the favorite. Bair of Kent State has run well consistenly this season, with a best time of 4:01.9.

Gerry Lindgren, the yound star from Washington State, heads a field in the two-mile that includes Charlie Messenger and Tom Donnelly of Villanova.

Smith, the world-record holder in several sprint events, comes up against a rising young star in James, a sophomore at Villanova, winner of the Millrose 500 in the meet-record time of 56.1.

Evans and Matthews are probably the two best quarter milers in the country and both have been impressive lately. Evans came within one-tenth of a second of the world record in the 500 at Seattle last week, running 55.6.

More fine competition should come in the 1,000 where Villanova freshman Martin Liquori will meet Bryon Dyce of NYU, winner of several cup races this winter, Conrad Nightingale of Kansas State and Bob Zieminski of Georgetown.

McCullouch, who shares two world outdoor hurdle records, meets Coleman, winner several times this winter, and Erv Hall, Villanova.

Charlie Greene of Nebraska is in the class of the 60-yard dash field that includes two football players: O. J. Simpson of Southern California and Kent Lawrence of Georgia.

Bob Seagren, world indoor record holder, tops the pole vault entrants. Wade Bell of Oregon heads a strong 880 field and five seven-foot high jumpers are in the meet.

—SKATER TO MARRY?—

Peggy Hints At Wedding Band

Grenoble, France (AP) — Figure skating princess Peggy Fleming hinted Thursday there may be a gold wedding band as well as a gold medal in her future.

"What are your future plans—are you going back to school?" the raven-haired, blue-eyed beauty from Colorado Springs, Colo., was asked after she had taken an almost insurmountable lead in the school figure phase of the Olympic competition.

"Oh, I don't know. I may get married," Peggy replied, her eyes shining.

"We hear there's a young man in Texas," someone said. "Can you give us his name?"

"I would rather not," Peggy replied. "He's in medical school at the University of Texas and he's taking his final examinations. He doesn't like this kind of publicity. But he's coming here the 15th."

"Are there any others?"

"There may be," Peggy said, apparently getting a kick out of the prodding into her romantic life.

Peggy, in a powder blue skating costume with white lace on the collar and sleeves and her hair in a tall bun with a blue ribbon tie, parried questions of her romantic interests.

"Is it true that there's somebody closer than Texas that you're interested in?" one newsman asked.

"Maybe," she answered, blushing slightly. She is seen constantly with tall Ronald Kauffman, 21, half of the brother-sister combination in the U.S. figure skating pairs. Peggy is 19.

"I get letters from a lot of people, some of them former competitors I've known," Peggy said. "No, I'm not engaged I'll let them compete."

Miss Fleming has announced that she does not plan a professional ice skating career but plans retirement shortly after the Olympics to return to Colorado College and become a kindergarten teacher.

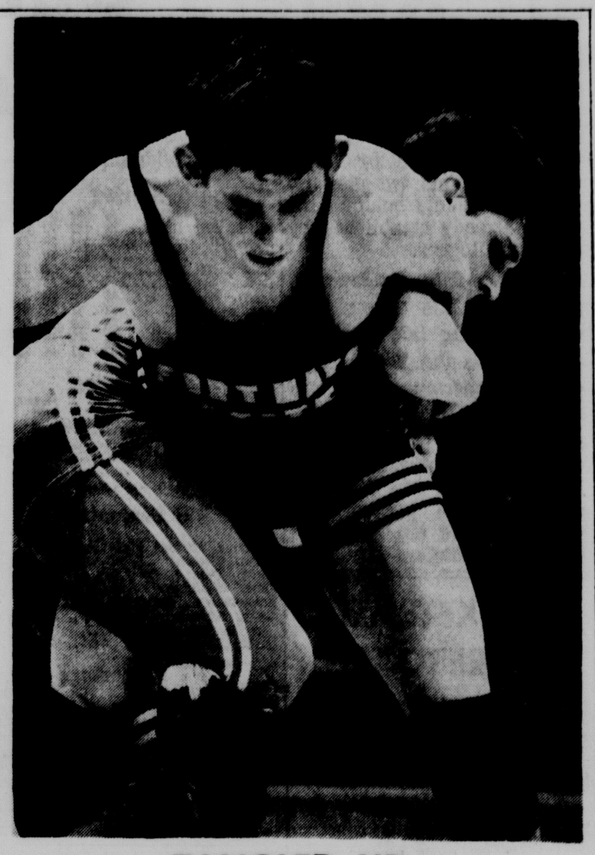

"There are a lot of things a young girl can do," she said. Retirement will not be immediate.

"I will defend my world title at Geneva after the Olympics," Peggy said, "and I think I'd like to compete at Colorado Springs in 1969.

"It would be a wonderful way to end my career — at home." The two-time world champion talked freely after a no-interview gag rule was relaxed by team manager John Shoemaker of San Francisco. Shoemaker said the pressure was off.

For the free skating final Saturday night, Peggy said she would wear either a coral dress with chiffon sleeves and sequins or a chartreuse with rhinestones, both hand-made by her mother.

Bad Weather Plagues Events

. . . KIDD READY

Grenoble, France (AP)—While bizarre weather plagued outdoor Olympic events, Peggy Fleming—the world's top ice ballerina — stayed indoors Thursday and whirled to a virtually unbeatable lead in women's figure skating.

Skier Billy Kidd, meanwhile, trudged out on the slopes in nearby Chamrousse to test his troublesome left ankle in the men's downhill race but was sent back indoors for at least one more day of rest by high winds, fog and a snow storm that forced postponement of the race.

"The ankle feels pretty good," the Stowe, Vt. flash said. "I've got it taped. I'll be ready to go whenever they hold the race."

The first two runs in the luge singles also were called off after officials decided mild weather at Villard-de-Lans had made the ice track too soft.

Both events were scheduled for today, weather permitting.

Nothing bothered Miss Fleming, however. The 19-year-old world champion from Colorado Springs, Colo., increased her 30.4-point lead to 77.2 as she dazzled judges and spectators in the last three of the five compulsory figures.

Even more important, she received an ordinal score of nine, which is perfect for the compulsory segment of the event, which counts for 60 per cent of the total score. Saturday's free skating will determine the other 40 per cent.

Final results are based on ordinals, which actually are places that judges award the skaters. In other words, each of the nine judges rates Miss Fleming first so here ordinal total is nine.

"Barring accidents, the gold medal is in the bag," said an elated Carlo Fassi, Peggy's trainer.

If, indeed, the pretty brunette with long black eyelashes wins the gold, it will be the first for the United States in the event since Tenley Albright brought it home in 1956.

When Kidd woke up Thursday, he told U.S. ski coach Bob Beattie he was ready to race in the downhill, just 24 hours after he fell in a practice run and sprained the same ankle he injured badly in 1966.

"Billy could have raced today," Beattie said. "He asked for 30 minutes between about 10 and 10:30 this morning. The decision was left entirely up to him, and he said he wanted to race.

"The delay, of course, is bound to help his ankle and could make the difference in a great performance. But let's face it. His chances are still diminished from what they would be if he had a completely sound ankle."

Kidd, who won a silver medal in the slalom four years ago, was waiting at the top of the 2,890-meter course with the rest of the world's top skiers when the decision was made to postpone the race.

Bigger Budget Recommended

. . . PARKS BOARD MEETS

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

A proposed $1,192,900 capital improvements budget for the Capital City's Parks and Recreation Department was recommended Wednesday by the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Board.

The budget, prepared by Parks Superintendent Don Smith and Recreation Superintendent Elmo Meroney, represents an increase of nearly one million dollars over current expenditures.

The budget includes $8,000 for swimming, $48,900 for ball fields, $43,000 for tennis and $22,800 for golf.

The budget was increased by $56,500 at Wednesday's meeting over figures presented nearly a month ago.

Additions to the proposed budget Wednesday were $9,000 for road and parking lot lights at Holmes Park, a federally-approved project, an increase from $2,500 to $5,000 for remodeling the craft room in the Recreation Center at 23rd and O, an increase from $12,700 to $20,000 for lighting two ball fields at Holmes Park, $8,000 for renovations at Muny Pool, $10,000 for renovations at the Antelope Park Dance Pavilion, $12,000 for a concessions building at Woods Park and $15,000 for a building to handle improved restaurant facilities at Pioneers Park Golf Course.

City Parks and Recreation Director Jim Ager suggested the latter two projects could be financed through revenue bonds.

The advisory board also recommended earmarking money for one of the two ball fields included in the Holmes Park portion of the budget to be used specifically for building a softball field.

The request was made by Lincoln City Softball Association president Bill Ketterer, who argued the city needed a diamond designed specifically for softball to be used by the AAA League teams.

In other actions, the board denied requests by the Lincoln Municipal Golfers Association to use the Junior Golf Course for its Par-3 Tournament and from radio station KLIN to continue its Golden Egg hunt.

The board accepted a check for $150 from the LMGA for use at the Junior Golf Course.

City Rec Season Ends In Tie

The race for the Class A city recreation league regular season title ended in a two-way tie.

Citizens' State Bank and Chubbyville both finished 8-2 after wins Wednesday night at Culler Junior High. CSB stopped Hammond Sports Wear, 61-38, and Chubbyville tripped Bryan Hospital, 60-47. Bryan ended 7-3.

Only one team escaped with an unbeaten record in the nine leagues running from Class A to Class D. The Independents compiled a 9-0 slate in winning Class D-1. All other city league teams suffered at least one loss.

No trophies were awarded this year for regular season championships, but statuettes will go to the winners and runnersup in the city league tournament beginning Monday.

Going for the plum in Class A will be CSB, Bryan, Chubbyville, Animals, Universals, Bombers, Mahoney Dry Wall and Security Mutual. The latter four moved up from B-1.

Regular season champions:

Class A—Chubbyville, Citizens State Bank, both 8-2. Class B-1—Universals, Bombers, Mahoney Dry Wall, Security Mutual, all 7-2. Class B-2, Div. 1—Crevices, Burners, National Bank of Commere, all 7-2. Class B-2, Div. 2—Hustlers, 8-1.

Class C-1, Div. 1—Lancers, 8-1. Class C-1, Div. 2—Bearcats, 8-1. Class C-2, Div. 1—Conservative, Lazy Ikes, both 8-1. Class C-2, Div. 2—Bair Machine, Rudy's Body Shop, both 7-2.

Class D-1—Independents, 9-0. Class D-2—Compass Room, Mayor's Council on Physical Fitness, both 8-1.

Powell Captures Lead In San Diego Tourney

San Diego, Calif. (AP) — Club professional Jimmy Powell of Riverside, Calif., knocked out an eight-under-par 64 Thursday to lead the way through the first round of the $150,000 Andy Williams — San Diego Open Golf Tournament as 66 players shattered regulation figures at the Torrey Pines Golf Club.

The 33-year-old Powell, a native of Dallas, Tex., who rarely plays in major tournaments any more, ripped out 32-32—64 over the 6,792-yard, par 36-36—72 course. The weather was cloudy most of the day as the field of 144 pros set forth and when the firing was over three of the three big name stars had been overshadowed.

Jack Nicklaus had a 33-34—67, Billy Casper 34-34—68, and Arnoll Palmer settled for even par 36-36—72.

LITTLE FRY BASKETBALL

By Roy C. Feltman

Here's a true story about what happened one day to the great golfer Bobby Jones—and, this is a story that illustrates the real meaning of the word "sportsmanship" . . . Jones was playing in the National Open of 1925 at Worcester . . . His ball went into the rough, and then accidentally moved very slightly when Jones's club touched a nearby blade of grass . . . Reporters later said that NOBODY saw the ball move . . . Jones, however, asked that he be penalized a stroke . . . Everyone tried to talk him out of taking the penalty because no one saw the ball move . . . But Jones insisted and as it turned out, that stroke cost him the title that year . . . Someone later asked Jones why he'd done it . . . He said, "That's the only way to play the game" . . . Is there a better definition of sportsmanship than that?

* * *

What was the longest fight on record? . . . Most boxing records show that the longest glove fight ever was between Andy Bowen and Jack Burke in New Orleans in 1893 . . . Their bout lasted 110 rounds, or 7 hours and 19 minutes! . . . It ended in a draw when neither man could continue.

* * *

I bet you didn't know . . . That Bourbon Supreme is the only charcoal distilled whiskey in the world. Its good taste justifies its name. Ask for it by name at your favorite package store or tavern.

Cady Could Get District Plum

. . . SOUTHEAST GOLDEN GLOVES TOURNEY SATURDAY

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Monte Cady, turned back in three previous attempts to win Southeast District Golden Gloves laurels, could pick up the plum this year when the district championships wind up Saturday night at the State Fairgrounds.

Cady, along with more than 20 other fighters, will weigh-in at 2 p.m. this afternoon at the Roberts Dairy Gym prior to tonight's opening round action.

Chairman Bill DeRock of the sponsoring Lincoln Master Barbers Association expects entries from the Lincoln Job Corps, Lincoln's El Rancho Supper Club team, Lincoln's Roberts Dairy club, Falls City and Fairbury to compete in eight weight divisions tonight and Saturday with fight time both nights set for 8 p.m.

Cady, of Lincoln Northeast, has dropped decisions in the finals to Roger Sherwood the past two years and was eliminated in the quarterfinals three years ago.

However, Roberts Dairy coach Larry Emery figures this could be the year for his welterweight hopeful.

"He's been working hard all year in the gym and he's in the best shape he's ever been in," Emery offers.

Sherwood is not fighting this year in order to concentrate on his University of Nebraska studies, but Cady will get competition from Roberts Dairy teammate Russ Blank and Lincoln Job Corps fighter Jesse Harris.

The Roberts Dairy team is the largest club, numberswise, in the tournament with coaches Emery and Dick Matthews sending 11 fighters into the competition.

Among them are three fighters, who have won Southeast District titles in the past with light heavyweight John Kuebler, last year's middleweight king; defending featherweight champion Mike Wilson and former lightweight titleholder Bob Gropp.

The only other defending champion entered is Neil Bickley, who won the 135-pound title last year while fighting for the Midwest Speedways team.

He will lead coach Ted White's El Rancho team this year, a team that also includes top title contenders in bantamweight Dave Oldfield and middleweight Randy Nelson, who could come in as a light heavyweight.

Tonight's card also will include six bouts involving Omaha fighters in elimination fights leading up to the Omaha City Tournament that is set for Monday night at the Omaha Civic Auditorium.

The entries to date:

112—Dennis Pierce, Fairbury; Mike Gropp, Roberts; Mike Cline, Roberts.
118—Dave Oldfield, El Rancho.
126—Mike Wilson, Roberts.
135—Eddie Dumbrosky, Falls City; Joe Beasley, Job Corps; Bob Gropp, Roberst; Neil Bickley, El Rancho; Clement Shaw Jr., Roberts.
147—Jesse Harris, Job Corps; Monte Cady, Roberts; Russ Blank, Roberts.
160—James Reese, Job Corps; Alex McMillan, Job Corps; Randy Nelson, El Rancho; Ken Stinnett, Roberts.
175—Ron Williamson, Roberts; John Kuebler, Roberts; Ross Scott, Job Corps; Haywood Strange, Job Corps.
Hvt—Alfred Koso, Falls City; Les Moldenhauer, Roberts.

Hixon Staggered, Comes Back

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

South Sioux City—Dale Hixon, a tough Ewing rancher who has been knocked off his feet only once in a 10-year amateur boxing career, gave young Sioux City, Iowa, light heavyweight Rick Bailey a lesson in how to take a punch in the co-feature of an amateur boxing card here Wednesday night.

Hixon, a 27-year-old Golden Gloves veteran making a comeback because of the extended age limit now in effect, won a unanimous five-round decision over the 17-year-old Sioux City bomber, who had knocked out his last four opponents.

The Ewing fighter, knocked down only by Omaha's John Gatus, was in trouble in the third round when Bailey staggered him with a left jab and a left hook.

But it was here that Hixon showed the ring savvy gained through years of boxing as he hung on to weather the threat.

Hixon then came back to hurt Bailey with two hard rights in the fourth and another right staggered the young boxer in the fifth.

Hixon was forced to retire two years ago, but when Golden Gloves officials moved the maximum age from 25 to 29 this year, he began his comeback.

The two fighters are likely to meet again in the Norfolk District Golden Gloves next Tuesday and Wednesday.

In the other co-feature, Hixon's brother, Bob, lost a unanimous, but disputed, five-round decision to Steve Eik, another 17-year-old Sioux Cityan fighting for Bill Engel, who promoted the Wednesday night card that drew more than 1,000 fans to the Atokad Race Track here.

The win was Eik's ninth in 10 starts and these two also are likely to meet again in the Norfolk District.

Lyle Chicoine, another of Engel's 17-year-old Kiddie Corps from Sioux City, scored an impressive first round TKO over Ira Miller of Omaha.

The knockout was Chicoine's second in a row, having KO'd Lincoln's Bob Gropp in the third round of a Capital City smoker a month ago.

112—Gary Montgomer, Neligh, dec. James Martin, Omaha.
126—Tim Frankl, South Sioux City, dec. Rick Puentes, Omaha.
118—Junior Peltzer, Neligh, dec. LaRue Williams, Omaha.
118—Mike Fox, North Sioux City, dec. Manny Puentes, Omaha.
126—Larry Montgomery, Neligh, KO'd Denny Tilden, Sioux Falls, in second.
147—Lyle Chicoine, Sioux City, TKO'd Ira Miller, Omaha, in first.
147—William Boots, Omaha, TKO'd Russ Nyberg, Wayne, in second.

Oklahomans Top Creighton

Oklahoma City (AP) — Oklahoma City slammed Creighton, 112-86, Thursday night to win its 16th basketball game in 20 starts.

The triumph avenged an earlier loss to Creighton, 88-86, during a five-game span in which the Chiefs lost their four games. It was their seventh straight win.

Led by Rich Travis, the nation's sixth leading scorer, the Chiefs shot to a 66-50 halftime margin, then coasted in. Travis had 38 points for the night, 21 in the first half.

OU's Sidle-Rogers Duo Chased By Husker Pair

Kansas City — Sometime during the Oklahoma-Iowa State game in Norman Saturday, the Big Eight conference will have a new pair leading the league's all-time one-two scoring punch table.

Right now, Oklahoma's Don Sidle and Willie Rogers have accounted for 2,421 points between them. This leaves the two just 24 points shy of the mark (2,444) held by Missouri's Charles Henke and Joe Scott and set during their 1959-61 tenure for the Tigers.

In their two years and 18 games of competition, Sidle has scored 1,403 points. Rogers, crossing the 1,000 plateau this past week, now has 1,018. Henke was the leader of the Missouri pair, getting 1,338, while Scott had 1,106.

However, whether the Sooner pair remains the Big Eight's leading scoring duo of all-time will depend not so much upon how far they surpass the Henke-Scott total, but how long they are able to hold off another high scoring pair of teammate contemporaries, Tom Baack and Stuart Lantz, the top two scorers in Nebraska history.

Baack and Lantz now stand at 2,290 as a combo, both showing career totals of over 1,100. Baack, with 1,174 leads the pair, followed by Lantz with 1,116. This two-man total is 113 points behind the figure already established by Sidle and Rogers.

An up-to-date rundown of placings on the career individual scoring table puts Sidle fifth on the list, just 31 points away from moving into fourth, one notch ahead of Kansas' Wilt Chamberlain, who had a two-year total of 1,433. Baack is now 14th and with 25 more points, he'll move into the top 10. Lantz is 17th and Rogers 33rd.

District Wrestling Set In Knights' Gym Today

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

A two-ring circus opens Friday afternoon at the Southeast High School Gym for a two-day stand.

It will be officially known as the eight-team District A-1 wrestling tournament. All five Lincoln schools will be joined by Fremont, Beatrice and Columbus to make up the field.

Meet director Gail Baum, wrestling coach at Southeast, said that "in order to keep things moving and get the tourney conducted on time, we'll have two matches going at all times."

Action opens with the first round, four matches in each of 12 weight divisions, on Friday starting at 3 p.m. Semifinals in the championship flights will resume at 1 p.m. Saturday afternoon, immediately followed by consolation semifinal matches.

Championship and consolation finals will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday night. In every weight class, each boy gaining the championship finals and the winner of the consolation title will advance to the state meet to be held a week later at the University of Nebraska.

Lincoln High's Bob Orta, who won the state title in the 95-pound class last year, will be favored in the 103-pound division, while Fremont's Doug Wagner heads a talented 180-pound field.

Southeast's Joe Martin is second-seeded in the same weight class, while Lanny Graves from Beatrice and Columbus' Gene Nyffeler both have fine dual meet records and figure to make an all-out challenge for the title.

The Tigers from Fremont have topped all the local schools in dual meets this winter, with the exception of Lincoln High, not on their schedule.

"Fremont has to be tabbed the favorite," Baum admitted, "but lots of factors come into play with eight teams involved. On the basis of past performances it looks like any one of three of us could win it."

"Us" means Baum's own Southeast Knights and the Links, whom the meet director called "an outstanding squad."

Creighton Squad

Omaha (AP) — Bob Walter, 6-4 sophomore basketball player from Davenport, Ia., has quit Creighton University, Coach Red McManus said Thursday.

McManus said Walter, who appeared in four games the first semester, has transferred to St. Ambrose College in Davenport.

Nebraska 7th In Free Throwing

New York City — The 63 points scored by Nebraska in its one-point victory over Oklahoma State last Saturday has helped shove the Cowboys from the No. 1 spot in total defense among the nation's major colleges.

Oklahoma State, first a week ago, now trails Tulsa by two-tenths of a point per game average with a 58.6 mark. Kansas is seventh at 60.9 and Kansas State, the NU foe Saturday night at the NU Coliseum is 15th at 63.9.

Nebraska ranks seventh in free throw percentage, hitting 300 of 395 attempts for a .759 mark.

Husker Matmen Top Hays College

The University of Nebraska mat squad topped Hays College of Kansas, 20-11, here Thursday at the Nebraska Coliseum.

Links, Pius X To Square Off

. . . TONIGHT AT PERSHING

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

"We'll be meeting a fine Pius X team twice in a matter of a couple of weeks. This will be a good chance to feel them out."

It was coach Alden Johnson of the Lincoln High Links looking forward to this weekend's highlight game on the local schedule. Friday night his Links and Lane Birkel's Pius X Thunderbolts tangle at Pershing Auditorium.

"It's the first time in a month that we've only had one game on a weekend," Johnson added, "so we won't have to point for two separate opponents."

Last weekend Lincoln dropped a 65-58 decision to Southeast in a game that was much closer than the score indicated and Saturday topped North Platte 61-57, while playing without the services of leading scorer Joe Casmer.

Bryan Grosscup, who has upped his average to 14-points-per game while scoring 67 counters in his last three outings, picked up the slack with Casmer out of the lineup. Grosscup came through with 25, a season high for the peppery senior guard.

"The Southeast game could have gone either way," Johnson declared, "and I thought the boys played real well against North Platte considering the absence of Casmer. He'll be back against Pius, but they are obviously playing good ball. It should be a good one."

Birkel's 'Bolts dropped two in a row last weekend, both at the hands of top-rated Omaha teams. Fourth-ranked Tech beat the visiting Pius quintet Friday, 76-67. Saturday the 'Bolts tangled with No. 1 Creighton Prep and were edged, 66-64, in double overtime.

"I've never seen a year when the top teams were so balanced," Birkel observed. "We're expecting another real tough battle with Lincoln. Prior to meeting them in the district this will be a good time to assess their strengths and weaknesses."

Two other games are on the local slate Friday night. East entertains Fremont at the East Gym, while Ed Johnson's Northeast Rockets host Beatrice at Johnson Gym.

Wally McNaught's Southeast Knights are idle Friday but tangle in another intra-city clash Saturday night at Pershing Auditorium against East High.

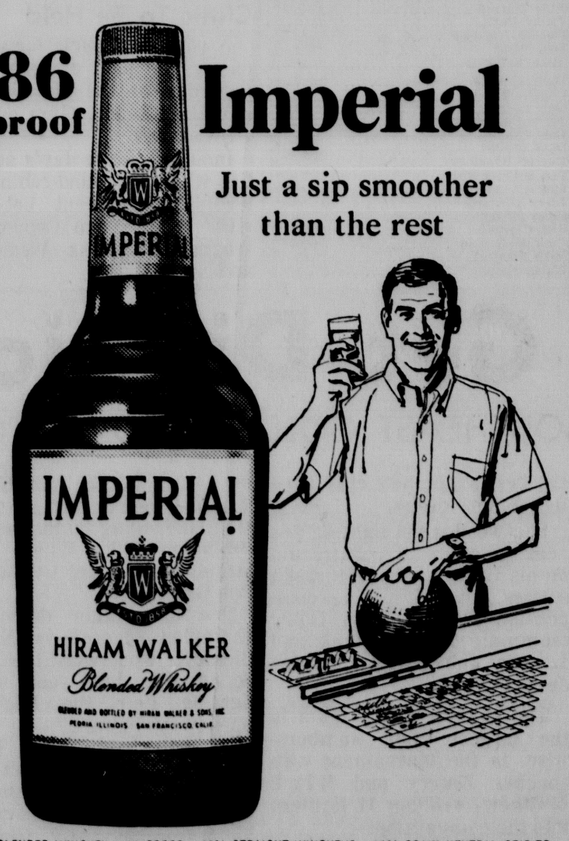

Bellevue invades the Pius home floor Saturday night to challenge the 'Bolts, while Northeast travels to Fremont to take on the Tigers.

Thompson Says State Needs Export Industries

Nebraska industry was compared to a Chinese laundry Thursday night at the second meeting of the Lincoln Central Labor Union's public affairs institute.

City Councilman Carroll Thompson said that like the Chinese system of trading clothes to launder, Nebraska industry is manufacturing products which are traded with other state industries and agriculture.

"Like the Chinese laundry, none of the industries have a very high income," Thompson said. "We need to get new money by making something we can ship out of the state."

Thompson suggested the establishment of personal apparel, non-electric machinery and small instruments industries. He added that "much of the growth must also come from the expansion of local industry."

Thompson urged support of any kind of project or legislation which would bring industry to the state and particularly to southeast Nebraska where an organized development program is underway.

Lincoln lacks industry which could pay property taxes to offset tax money which cannot be obtained from its two largest industries—education and government, Thompson said.

Thompson added that Lincoln "ought to have on paper the facts of where we want to be 10 years from today. We can predict, we can set goals and we can reach them."

J. J. Exon, vice chairman of the Nebraska Democratic Party, outlined the party's stand against sale of state school lands and in favor of a partisan legislature where, he said, "there is a way to fix responsibility."

He expressed regret over the loss of the Job Corps but noted "If I were Shriver (OEO director) I would close down the ones where the people through their representatives say they don't want it."

Exon added that he hoped the closing was not purely for political reasons because "the sad fact is the kids out there have been kicked around all their lives."

Next week's institute will feature state senator Don Elrod from Grand Island.

OSWALD'S WIDOW TESTIFIES

Mrs. Marina Oswald Porter, widow of the accused assassin of President Kennedy, and her husband Kenneth stroll past French-style lacework on the way to a grand jury appearance in New Orleans. Mrs. Porter testified about the four months she lived with Lee Harvey Oswald in New Orleans in the summer of 1963. An aide to Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison said her appearance had no major significance.

Top Tribute Goes To Dead Soldier

Washington (UPI) — Army secretary Stanley R. Resor awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously Thursday to a draftee who saved the lives of eight other soldiers by throwing himself over a grenade.

The nation's highest military tribute for valor went to Sgt. Donald R. Long of Columbus, Ohio. It was presented to his closest relative, a sister, Mrs. Marva Y. Gordon of Columbus.

AK47 Rifle Helps Reds Hold Hue For 9 Days

By GENE ROBERTS

© New York Times Service

Hue, South Vietnam — To understand why enemy forces have been able to hold Hue for nine consecutive days, you have only to look at the combat rifle that they are using.

Called the AK47, it is a Chinese Communist copy of the standard Russian infantry weapon. It is stubby, weighs only about 10 pounds and can fire a clip of 30 bullets in three seconds.

"I can remember when the Marines never assigned more than four men to get a sniper who was holed up in a house, said Staff Sgt. John R. King, a veteran of both the Korean conflict and World War II, after watching Marines demolish a house with cannons to get at a sniper.

Holds Many At Bay

"But now that has changed. When a soldier has the AK47, he's not just a sniper—he's a machine gunner. He can tie up an entire company.'

Just two years ago, only a fraction of the enemy soldiers were equipped with the AK47. Now the rifle is standard equipment for 100 fully operational and 50 partly operational North Vietnamese and Viet Cong battalions in South Vietnam.

Marines are capturing stockpiles of the rifles in Hue. But the enemy troops here show no signs of suffering from a rifle shortage.

Thursday, snipers using the AK47 filtered back into the 70 blocks of southern Hue the Marines already had taken.

Americans Freed

As a result, the Marines captured only about three new blocks Thursday, but they freed more than 20 U.S. civilians and military personnel who had been surrounded by enemy troops since Jan. 31.

The Marines also rescued a dozen Indian, Polish and Canadian members of an International Control Commission team which had established its headquarters in Hue.

"They (the Viet Cong) rocketed the place all right and shot it up with mortars and rifles," said Indian Col. G. C. Joshi. "But they did not come in the building after we told them who we were."

Nazis File Suit To Bury Rockwell In U.S. Cemetery

Alexandria, Va. (UPI) — The American Nazi Party filed suit in U.S. District Court Thursday in a renewed effort to have the remains of assassinated leader George Lincoln Rockwell buried in a national cemetery, except Arlington.

The suit accused the Defense Department and some of its top officials of violating the constitution in barring Nazi armbands and other insignia from the national cemetery at Culpeper, Va., last summer.

Philip Hirschkop, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, filed the petition on behalf of the party and its new chief, Matt Koehl.

"If they can prevent the Nazis from wearing armbands and displaying banners," Hirschkop told a news conference "then they could stop preachers from wearing their collars."

Stocks Plunge In Late Trading

New York (AP)—Fear that the Asian war may spread to Korea triggered a wave of selling that battered the stock market to its worst loss of the year Thursday.

Final trading was heavy, with the ticker tape four minutes late.

Volume was 9.66 million shares, up from 8.38 million Wednesday.

Stocks were dumped late in the shortened session on news that North Korean Premier Kim Il-sung had been quoted as saying that recent developments show a war may break out "at any moment" in Korea and that he had ordered the army and people to strengthen combat preparations.

The Dow Jones industrial average plunged 9.60 to 850.32.

This put it close to the closing low of 849.57, in the general area of a technical support level which has been tested and found firm several times.

At the time the news came, the market already was softening. It had erased a small early advance and settled lower, unable to muster any buoyancy because of the dragging suspense over the military situation in Vietnam, with the USS Pueblo matter still an overhanging worry.

As the news was flashed to brokerage offices, typical warscare selling battered stocks, especially the higher-priced glamor issues.

Polaroid, already weak because of a disappointingly small earnings increase, dropped 16¾ points.

IBM lost 13½, Xerox 10⅞, Burroughs 11⅜, Control Data 5, Raytheon 3¾ and Eastman Kodak 3.

Of 1,476 issues traded, 1,071 fell and 221 rose. New highs for 1967-'68 totaled 14 and new lows 47.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 2.8 to 311.4 with industrials down 4.2, rails off 1.8 and utilities off .9.

Of the 30 blue chip components of the Dow Jones industrial average, 25 fell, 3 rose and 2 were unchanged.

The New York Stock Exchange index fell 66 cents to $50.83.

There wasn't a single gainer among the 15 most active stocks. Thirteen fell and two were unchanged.

Prices also fell sharply on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 5.06 million shares compared with 4.19 million Wednesday.

Strong Demand Boosts Prices In Grain Mart

Chicago (AP)—A strong demand in the closing minutes, based largely on reports of developments in East Asia, influenced higher prices for grain and soybeans futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

Trade had been, at best, only fair although mixed until the final 10 minutes of the session, when the spurt of mixed buying got under way

The activity moved wheat prices 1 cent ahead, and corn and soybeans ½ cent higher. All closed at or near their highs for the session.

None of the floor reports concerning North Korea and the war in Vietnam bore an official United States government imprint at the time. Despite this, however, prices were more active than any 10-minute period in three weeks.

At the close of trade, wheat was ¼ of a cent a bushel lower to ¾ higher, March 1.49½; corn ⅝ to ⅞ higher, March 1.19½-⅝; oats ⅛ to ½ higher, March 76¾ cents; rye unchanged to ½ higher, March 1.21⅝-½; and soybeans ⅛ to ½ higher, March 2.74⅛-73⅞.

Russia Holds At Least 15 Intellectuals At Hard Labor After Secret Trials

© New York Times Service

Washington — At least 15 Soviet writers, teachers and scientists are held in hard labor camps after a wave of secret trials, news of which Soviet authorities have tried to suppress for nearly two years.

This is the main import of a collection of manuscripts written by a Soviet newsman, Vyacheslav Chornovil, and smuggled to the West a few pages at a time over a period of many months last year.

The existence of the Chornovil manuscripts has gradually found its way into print, first in Canadian newspapers and, two days ago, in the Times of London. Now McGraw-Hill Inc. of New York has announced it will publish the documents as a book in the spring.

Crackdown in Ukraine

Chornovil's account provides the first precise confirmation of a police crackdown on intellectuals in the Ukraine in the winter of 1965-66, just at the time that two Moscow writers, Andrei D. Sinyavsky and Yuli M. Daniel, were put on trial for sending their manuscripts abroad for publication.

Unlike the Sinyavsky-Daniel affairs, however, the Ukrainian crackdown was never publicly acknowledged. In many cases, relatives of the victims were never officially notified of what had happened.

This is the aspect of the whole episode that led Chornovil, 30, a reporter for the Ukrainian radio-television service, to denounce the proceedings. His manuscripts contain lengthy legal citations to show that Soviet authorities had violated Ukrainian statutes and the Soviet constitution in their procedures.

Refused To Testify

As a newsman, Chornovil was once asked to testify against a colleague on trial; he refused to assist at an "illegal" trial and was himself arrested. After a successful appeal and re-arrest, this time on charges to "anti-Soviet activities," Chornovil was sentenced last November to a hard labor camp for 18 months, according to one document, three years according to another.

To western political analysts, confirmation of the Ukrainian crackdown is doubly significant. It demonstrates the confidence which authorities of the Soviet State Security Committee, the KGB, felt under the Communist Party leadership that overthrew Nikita S. Khrushchev in October, 1964.

Analysts have concluded that the KGB and its political leaders in the Soviet Politburo were behind the Sinyavsky-Daniel conviction; now it appears that the license this faction received through the delicate power balance at the top was far greater than had been realized earlier.

The fact of a crackdown also seems to indicate that there is continuing sensitivity and nervousness in the Communist party at feelings of nationalism among outlying republics of the Soviet Union.

Hot Coals Start Fire At Red Ram

Hot charcoal briquets were cited as the cause of a fire at the Red Ram, 126 No. 14th, Thursday evening.

A Fire Department spokesman said someone had placed a bucket of hot briquets on a sheet iron plate and the heat generated through the bucket and plate set the wooden floor on fire in the rear of the building.

Damage to the floor was considerable, according to the spokesman, but it was not immediately determined if the front of the building suffered smoke damage or not.

Oklahoman Aids Japanese Farm Trainees At NU

A visiting professor from Oklahoma is helping Japanese agricultural trainees at the University of Nebraska learn about the American cattle industry.

Dwight F. Stephens, a member of the Oklahoma Animal Husbandry Hall of Fame, has spent much of his time since coming to Nebraska leading the 21 beef production trainees on educational tours.

Recently Stephens and the trainees visited the Herman Ebers farm near Seward and the American Angus Association headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo.

Stephens said they plan to attend the Dawson County Cattle Feeders Tour on Thursday and visit the Arch Lew ranch at Arthur and the University's North Platte Station on Friday.

His other duties at Nebraska include teaching an upper level course in beef production.

Dr. John Bauer Is Dead At 86; Doane Benefactor

Crete — Word has been received here of the death of Dr. John Bauer, 86, of Chatham, N.J., well known benefactor of Doane College.

Dr. Bauer and his wife, the late Florence Foss Bauer, both Doane graduates, established the Bauer-Foss Scholarships for freshman students from Saline and Dundy Counties in 1958.

In May 1965, Dr. Bauer gave the college Bauer House, the Doane president's home.

Receiving his Ph.D. from Yale University, Dr. Bauer was an associate professor of economics at Cornell University. From 1933 to 1960 he was president of the American Public Utilities Bureau.

Surviving are sons, Frederick F of Centralia, Ill., and William A. of Chatham.

Brotherhood Week Headed By Morrison

Omaha (UPI) — Frank B. Morrison, former governor, is brotherhood week chairman for the state of Nebraska.

The National Conference of Christmas and Jews announced his acceptance. As chairman he will call upon leaders of Nebraska's cities and towns to join in the observance. He will also be the featured speaker at the good neighbor awards Luncheon on Feb. 19 at the Sheraton-Fontenelle Hotel in Omaha.

In 1965 Morrison received the annual brotherhood award from the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

De Gaulle Honors Vanished Crew With Sub Cruise

© New York Times Service

Paris—President De Gaulle Thursday took a 48-minute underwater cruise aboard a sistership of the submarine Minerve which vanished with 52 men last month.

The president, 77, boarded the submarine Eurydice after a memorial service for the lost sailors at the naval base of Toulon, home port of the Minerve.

His act was interpreted as a gesture of solidarity with French submariners and a homage to the dead crew. He was wearing his two star general's uniform of World War II.

Freeman School Bill Proposed By Nebraskans

Washington (AP) — A bill to include the one-room Freeman School near Beatrice, Neb., as part of the Homestead National Monument was proposed Thursday by Nebraska congressmen.

The school, built in 1871, was attended by children of Daniel Freeman, the first homesteader under the Homestead Act of 1862.

The Interior Department would be authorized to acquire the school from the Homestead Historical Society under legislation proposed by Rep. Robert Denney and Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis, Nebraska Republicans.

African Link Planned

ORDINANCE NO. 9392

AN ORDINANCE amending Section 27.38.040 of the Lincoln Municipal Code and Chapter 27.40 by adding a new section to be numbered Section 27.40.126 relating to enlargement of a non-conforming use and repealing Section 27.38.040 of the Lincoln Municipal Code as hitherto existing, and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith.

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska:

Section 1. That Section 27.38.040 of the Lincoln Municipal Code be and it is hereby amended to read as follows:

"27.38.040 EXTENSION OR ENLARGEMENT. No existing building devoted to a use not permitted by this title in the district in which such building is located, except when required to do so by law or order, or as authorized by permit pursuant to Section 27.40.126, shall be enlarged, extended, converted, reconstructed or structurally altered, unless such use is changed to a use permitted in the district in which such building is located; provided, however, that during the ten year period after November 2, 1953, non-conforming light industrial uses in the "G", "H", and "I" Districts and non-conforming heavy industries in the "K" District may be extended or enlarged by not to exceed a fifty percent increase in the cubical contents of the building; and further provided, that all height and area regulations be observed in such extension."

Section 2. That Chapter 27.40 of the Lincoln Municipal Code be amended by adding a new section to be numbered Section 27.40.126 to read as follows:

"27.40.126. SPECIAL PERMITS —NON-CONFORMING USES. The City Council of the City of Lincoln may, by special permit, after public hearing, authorize the issuance of a building permit to permit the enlargement, extension, conversion, reconstruction or structural alteration of any building located upon premises, the use of which constitute a non-conforming use, provided however in consideration of applications for such special permits, the Council shall take into account efects on adjacent property, traffic, city utility service needs, density of land use zoning for the subject property and adjacent property and the degree of hardship upon the applicant which would be caused by failure to grant such a permit."

Section 3. That Section 27.38.040 of the Lincoln Municipal Code, as hitherto existing, be and it is hereby repealed.

Section 4. That all other ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith be and they are hereby repealed.

Section 5. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication according to law.

ORDINANCE NO. 9391

AN ORDINANCE establishing the official grades of certain streets in Churchill's Subdivision, an addition in the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, with reference to a datum plane herein described including said addition within the corporate limits of the City of Lincoln; and accepting and approving the plat of Churchill's Subdivision, an addition in the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, filed in the office of the Planning Department of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, upon certain conditions herein specified and providing for a bond conditioned upon the strict compliance with such conditions.

WHEREAS, William J. Churchill and Georgia A. Churchill, husband and wife, and Jacob Loos and Patricia Ruth Loos, husband and wife, owners of a tract of land whose point of beginning is at the South ¼ Corner of Sec. 15, Township 10 North, Range 7 East. Beginning at this point and proceeding along the west line of the Southeast ¼ in a northerly direction a distance of 40' and continuing a distance of 135.0 feet and continuing northerly a distance of 129.54 feet to the intersection with the 60 foot radius turning circle, thence northerly on the same line a distance of 113.09 feet to the northwest corner of Churchill's Subdivision. At this point a deflection angle of 89 degrees 29 feet right is turned thence proceeding in an easterly direction a distance of 37.23 feet to the intersection with the 60 feet radius turning circle thence eastward on the same line a distance of 380.5 feet to the northeast corner of said subdivision thence turning a deflection angle of 90° 31 feet right thence proceeding in a southerly direction a distance of 377.63 feet thence southerly a distance of 40 feet, thence turning a deflection angle of 89° 29 feet right thence continuing in a westerly direction on the south line of Section 15 a distance of 417.45 feet to the south ¼ corner of Section 15, Township 10 North, Range 7 East which is the point of beginning, having platted said real estate under the designation of Churchill's Subdivision, and having filed said plat in the office of the Planning Department, City of Lincoln, Nebraska, with a request for approval and acceptance thereof, in the manner and form as by ordinance required, and

WHEREAS, it is for the convenience of the inhabitants of said City of Lincoln, Nebraska, and for the public that said plat be approved and accepted as filed.

NOW, THEREFORE, Be it Ordained by the City Council of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska:

Section 1. That from and after the effective date of this ordinance the lands included within Churchill's Subdivision shall be and hereby are included within the corporate limits of tre City of Lincoln, Nebraska.

Section 2. That the grades of certain streets in Churchill's Subdivision, an addition in the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, be and they are hereby established with reference to a datum plane, which is located as follows: Bench mark cut in water table at the northeast corner of the City Hall building is 79.74 feet above said datum plane.

The grades hereby established shall be uniform straight lines between adjacent points hereinafter specified in said streets and between the grade points heretofore established by ordinance in adjacent streets.

Section 3. Grade at the south curb line of the cul-de-sac on Fairfax Avenue at the center line of Carlos Drive 172.90.

Section 4. Grade at a point on the east curb of the cul-de-sac at the center line of Fairfax Avenue elevation 171.90.

Section 5. Grade at a point on the curb of the cul-de-sac at the northerly limits of this plat elevation 171.15.

Section 6. That the plat of Churchill's Subdivision filed in the office of the Planning Department of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, by William J. Churchill and Georgia A. Churchill, husband and wife, and Jacob Loos and Patricia Ruth Loos, husband and wife, as owners, be and they are hereby given the right to plat said Churchill's Subdivision as an addition in the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, in accordance therewith. Such acceptance and approval are conditioned upon the following conditions:

First: That the owners above set forth shall, at their own cost and expense, construct sidewalks in the sidewalk space along the north side of Holdrege Street within the limits of this plat and also in the cul-de-sac right-of-way on the Fairfax Avenue extension adjacent to lot C of this subdivision, in accordance with the ordinances of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, relating to sidewalks. The construction of said sidewalks shall be completed not later than December 23, 1971.

Second: That the owners above set forth shall, at their own cost and expense, pay for all labor, material, engineering and inspection costs in connection with the construction of a system of ornamental street lights, together with all other expense in connection therewith. Said system of ornamental street lights shall be constructed under the supervision of the City of Lincoln. The construction of said system of ornamental street lights shall be completed not later than December 23, 1969.

Third: That the owners above set forth shall, prior to the passage of this ordinance, enter into a written agreement with the City of Lincoln, agreeing that the City of Lincoln shall bring the streets to the official established grades as herein-above set forth, and construct the necessary sanitary sewers and water mains to serve the real estate in said addition, and assess the cost thereof against the real estate in said addition in accordance with benefits accruing thereto.

Section 7. That the owners above set forth shall, prior to the passage of this ordinance, execute and deliver to the City of Lincoln, (a) a bond in the sum of $1,000.00, conditioned upon the strict compliance by the owners above named with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "Second" of the next preceding section of this ordinance; which bond shall be subject to the approval of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, and shall be further conditioned that in the event the above-named owners fail to comply with the conditions herein set forth within the time specified in this ordinance, the City Council shall proceed to fulfill said conditions, the cost thereof to be paid by the surety on said bond. Such work shall be performed in the manner set forth in Title 26 of the Lincoln Municipal Code, known as the Land Subdivision Ordinance, as now existing or as may hereafter be amended.

Section 8. Immediately upon the taking effect of this ordinance, the owners shall file a certified copy of this ordinance in the office of the Register of Deeds of Lancaster County, Nebraska.

Section 9. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication according to law.

"For some a little out of the way . . . But a lot less to pay!"

We create low prices with low overhead and still a full service dealer.

YOU GET THE VERY BEST FOR LESS. Used cars, traded for, one owner, a clean bill of health on all — This makes us the biggest little dealership in the country setting prices that cannot be matched on cars that are unequaled for money spent.

We wholesale the dogs and give good buys on A-1 cars you cannot match.

The Price of Gas is Outrageous.

It's 40 cents a gallon. That's reason enough to look at the Renault 10.

The Renault 10 gives an honest 35 miles on a single gallon of gas. And without sticking you in the slow lane all the time either. (It'll jump up to 84 m.p.h. anytime you want.)

You can get all this economy for an outrageously low price—too!

Wanek's OF CRETE 13 HUGE STOREWIDE HOUR SALE

SATURDAY, FEBR. 10TH ONLY ... 8:00 A.M. TO 9:00 P.M.

WHY THESE SPECIAL LOW PRICES FOR 13 HOURS? Because we must balance our inventory! If you need home furnishings . . . run! If you know of anyone who needs home furnishings . . . tell them to run! But whatever you do, don't miss WANEK'S Saturday, the 10th 13 hour sale. You will save as you never dreamed possible. Every inch of our huge warehouse and stock was searched . . . every corner scrutinized for odds and ends . . . merchandise in our stocks a little too long. Our aim . . . to make room for beautiful new things on the way. A few dollars in our bank account working for us buying new merchandise, is far better than many dollars tied up in precious merchandise unsold. So look at these values, then come in and take advantage of these lucky 13 hour bargains. Many one-of-a-kind items in this special sale, so shop early for best selection. The doors are open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. All items are subject to prior sale. Sorry, no C.O.D. or phone orders. IMPORTANT! All merchandise tagged for sale is sold as sampled. Pay no money down, as little as $8 monthly on WANEK'S easy terms.
